

Second Round Table Conference Failure, MacDonald States

CANDHI READY TO FIGHT FOR 'REAL LIBERTY'

Mahatma Refuses to Consider Compromise Proposal of Colleagues

London.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald closed the second round table conference today with a declaration that it had failed, but the work of arranging independence for India would go on.

Mahatma Gandhi, in his final word, said that as far as he could determine from listening to the prime minister's address, he and the British government had reached the parting of the ways.

The Mahatma speaking his Monday day of silence at 1 o'clock this morning, steadfastly refused compromise proposed by some of his colleagues and declared that he would return to India determined to revive the civil disobedience campaign unless the government would give what he considered "real liberty" to India's millions of people.

The work of the conference, the prime minister said, would be continued through a committee. While the delegates applauded, he said the present national government fully accepts the promises of the previous Labor government as to India's future.

"We must meet again," he said, "and I am sure we will." He said that he had put his hands to the task. Let us build well and truly.

The goal, he said, is a federation of autonomous provinces and states, but he added that the Indians being unable to agree among themselves his majesty's government has no intention of "forcing" responsibility upon those who are not prepared to assume it.

Agreement Required
"You must come to an agreement among yourselves," he said, "on problems of the representation of minorities. I beg of you to go ahead."

Last night's session of the conference did not end until 2 o'clock a. m. today.

The Mahatma, from whose lips no word fell during a long day and night in which nearly a half million words of oratory flowed through the conference rooms in St. James palace, began his speech as historic Big Ben, high in the parliament building tower, rang out 1 o'clock a. m.

"He will renew his civil disobedience campaign," he said, with "joy and consolation" if Great Britain fails to grant India what he demands as "real freedom." Then, he added, India's "half-starved millions" would have the satisfaction of knowing they were "not taking, but giving," lives.

Prime Minister MacDonald looked tired, but he listened to the speeches to the end, after 2 o'clock a. m. Other leaders, including Springvase Sastri, one of the India's greatest orators, had counseled compromise.

Plea to Gandhi
"Yes, Mahatma," said Sastri, who in 1921 represented India at the World Disarmament conference at Washington, "your duty hereafter is with us. You have acquired an unequalled reputation and your influence is unequalled. Your spiritual power to command men and raise them above themselves is acknowledged all over the world.

"Shall not these great gifts be harnessed to the constructive work of the nation? Have you the heart still to lead your people, trustful and obedient through the valley of humiliation and death if it be not necessary? I contend it is no longer necessary."

"It seems to me you and I and our other friends here can frame this constitution and can look forward with confidence to a future when we will be able to perfect it. India's destiny is in your hands."

The Mahatma sat mute and inscrutable in his loneliness until the end of his day of silence. Then he spoke.

Mahatma's Reply
"I would strain every nerve to secure an honorable settlement without exposing the millions of India's men, women and children to the terrible ordeal of civil disobedience," he said, "but if the fight has to be faced I will renew it with joy."

"I am still open to compromise, provided the settlement is honorable and the liberty real. Call it by whatever name you will, but I want complete independence."

In concluding the conference, Prime Minister MacDonald paid tribute especially to Sastri's appeal. "That plea," he said, "shows an insight into the heart of India, but, my friends, it does more than that. It shows an insight into the heart of Great Britain and, approached in that way, your appeal is bound to be irresistible."

Floor Leader?

Representative Henry T. Rainey, above, of Illinois, appears virtually assured of the Democratic floor leadership of the House in the forthcoming session of Congress. He is said to have the majority support in both the northern and southern states.

COUNCIL DISCUSSES DEPARTMENT CHANGES

Practically every weighty problem that faces the common council at the informal meeting of the common council Monday evening at Hotel Appleton. The mayor and nine aldermen considered the possibility of departmental changes in the administration of city affairs, closer cooperation between aldermen and supervisors, poor department problems, and some of the snags in the path of the board of review.

A dinner preceded the business discussion.

PEORIA LIQUOR RING TRIAL IS NEARING CLOSE

Government Opens Last Two Days of Hearing Against 28 Defendants

Peoria, Ill.—(AP)—The government began its last two days of testimony today in the trial of 28 defendants charged with liquor conspiracy.

The last witness on the stand when court adjourned yesterday was John Dean, a convicted bootlegger, who told a story of liquor operations through the Midwest which implicated 36 other persons, including his wife.

Dean's testimony listed almost a dozen liquor resorts in Davenport, Iowa, named their proprietors, and described an intricate delivery system which he said functioned almost perfectly for three years.

The witness said Nick Coin and Edward Lathrop hired him to haul liquor from Rock Island, Ill., to Davenport, Iowa, across the Mississippi river. He said Louis Spriggin of Muscatine, Iowa, and Dominic Leonetti bought liquor from him.

At Florence, Ogas instructed him to deliver alcohol to places operated by Frank Smith and Isadore Lucchesi, and that Harry Pucias helped him move a still to Ralph Knight's farm in Muscatine.

Lathrop's interests in the Tri-City Malt and Extract company, he said, was purchased by Emory Kleth, Coin, he said, and Mike Talarico then planned on a partnership.

Describes His Route
Dean described at length his Davenport delivery route. He said he left liquor to persons named Vesco, to Rosie at Third and Warren-sts., in Davenport, to Dominic at Fourth and Gaines, and to Chuck at Third and Gaines.

Other stops, he said, were Albert, at Fourth and LeClaire-sts., Jim at 211 E. Third-st., Oscar Bondi at 424 W. Second-st., Brick Monroe's place across from Coin's office on W. Second-st., Granddett's on E. River-st., Gus at 211 E. Second-st., Bill Eubanks at Sixth and Harrison, and Little Peter's on Third-st.

Jewell Coin, wife of William Coin and a daughter-in-law of Nick Coin, kept bonded liquor in her attic, he said, and he frequently called for it at the Rock Island home. Sometimes, he added, she transported it in her own automobile.

Dean said he was fired by Lathrop June 2, 1930, after he was arrested

ASSESSMENT LEVIED BY FIRE RISK FIRM

The Cicerio Mutual Fire Insurance company, which has offices at Black Creek, was notified this week by Emil F. Goese, secretary, that an assessment of two and one half mills on the dollar has been made by the directors.

The assessment will raise $29,900.88 of which $27,355.71 will be used to pay losses incurred this year by fire and lightning. Assessment payments may be made at the First National bank and the Seymour State bank at Seymour; Bank of Black Creek at Black Creek; Appleton State bank at Appleton; State Bank of Nichols at Nichols; and Freedom State bank at Freedom.

COMMITTEE TO ACT ON AID REQUESTS

The county board poor committee will meet Wednesday afternoon at the courthouse to act on requests for mothers' pensions. The committee already has received 22 requests for renewal of pensions. There also are two new applications for pensions on file.

for possession and transporting alcohol. Prosecutors said that Mrs. Dean would follow her husband on the stand as a government witness.

Only four defendants had not been named in testimony when court adjourned yesterday. They were John and Anthony Corsetto, Paul Cincinqua, all of Chicago, and Oliver Kempster, of Sterling, sergeant of the highway police force.

NOTED VIOLINIST, HERE THIS WEEK, POPULAR ARTIST

Szigeti Has Become Perennial Favorite in Only Five Years

When Olin Downes, critic of all critics, described Szigeti, who will play here Wednesday night, as "an individuality—a violinist whose art is more than the episode of a season, he foresaw what a lofty, almost isolated position this "parisian" artist was to reach in the musical life of this country. In the five years since Szigeti's debut with the Philadelphia orchestra he has proved that a so-called "high-brow" artist can be at the same time a popular artist and that, by the significant test of reengagements, he is now a perennial favorite in the United States.

Following his European tour last spring, the Hungarian violinist left for his first visit to the orient, where he stayed until last October. On his coast to coast tour, which will continue until Christmas, he will play in Appleton, as the second

STUDENT TELLS OF SITUATION IN MANCHURIA

Jap Outlines Three Courses of Action Open to China

The Manchurian situation and a possible solution to the trouble was discussed by Masao Morioka, an instructor at Doshisha university, Kyoto, Japan, in an address to Lawrence students present at the chapel Monday morning. Mr. Morioka is now doing graduate work at the University of Chicago, and is national president of the Japanese Christian Students association of North America.

The history of Manchuria was briefly outlined by the speaker as a necessary background for the understanding of the present situation. The Russo-Japanese war of 1905 started the trouble, and with the immediate investment of enormous amounts of money in various economic enterprises in southern Manchuria, China's resentment began to grow.

When China began losing her political rights, there were three courses of action open to her. These were: war, peaceful arbitration, or an appeal to the League of Nations and the decision in recent times has been the latter. Several reasons for this decision was forwarded by Mr. Morioka, who stated that "China lacks all facilities for war, and she wants the responsibility for breaking the peace in the East to rest upon Japan."

Russia Keeps Out

In summarizing the attitudes held by the rest of the world toward the present situation, the speaker said that "Russia, so far, has remained out of the struggle, but is carefully watching her 1,000 miles of railroads in Northern Manchuria. However, Japan has never failed to strictly recognize these rights."

The United States, "expects the security of her investments in China, which total about 150,000,000 dollars." The League of Nations has expressed a desire to invoke a boycott on Japan, but since the United States will never cooperate with such a plan, in view of present business conditions, the scheme has been deemed impractical, since the states alone could support Japan.

I do not know what the outcome of the situation will be. My view of the situation is very idealistic, calling for a strict demarcation between the political and the economic interests of the warring factions. China must respect the rights and interests of her neighbors and these neighbors must in turn respect the political rights of China."

It is planned to secure a Chinese speaker to appear before the student body in the near future, so that both sides of the argument can be presented.

Santa Suggests Wooden Salt and Pepper Shakers

BY LILLIAN

For the young bachelor who likes to give a Sunday breakfast once in a while or for the gay young bachelor or school girl who serves "snacks" made on her electric plate, there are little wooden salts and peppers now available that are a real addition to any dining nook.

They are painted like people, seemingly demure sirens, in the brightest colors, red, purple, orange, black. They cast their eyes down but they have combs in their hair.

They are inexpensive and make a lovely gift for folks who like the latest novelties.

Response Is Poor In Red Cross Drive

Appleton has responded poorly to the annual roll call of the Outagamie chapter, American Red Cross, according to A. P. Jensen, past chapter chairman, and campaign official. Thus far only 349 subscriptions, totalling $420, have been received.

The annual drive officially closed on Thanksgiving day, but because of the slow returns it will be continued until more responses are received. Mr. Jensen reported. The drive is held annually from Nov. 11 to Thanksgiving day.

The county chapter's quota this year is 1,000 members. Mr. Jensen sent out 1,200 letters asking for help in the Red Cross in its annual drive. Most of the subscriptions received so far have been for $1.

With its budget practically exhausted because of the relief work carried on among the Indians of the Onondia reservation last winter, the county chapter is badly in need of funds, Mr. Jensen stated.

Every effort is being made to boost the membership quota nearer the 1,000 mark, and also increase the value of subscriptions. Memberships are being received by P. M. Conkey, chapter treasurer, and by Mr. Jensen.

As he convenes his home owners and home builders conference in Washington.

MILL OWNERS INSURES

QUAKER OATS CORP. ST. JOSEPH, MO.

SAVING 25 to 30% on the cost of fire insurance, while very much worthwhile, would not be sufficient to influence an organization such as the Quaker Oats Corporation to insure with the Mill Owners Mutual. However, when the above savings are provided in addition to the following features, it is easily understood why this corporation and other leading companies are choosing the Mill Owners. 1. Only select risks insured; 2. Regular inspections of these risks by trained engineers; 3. Sound, efficient mutual management; 4. Strength in cash assets and surplus; 5. Man Takes Own Life With Gun Crawling under the foundation of the home of his parents on Third-st. at Kaukauna, early Monday afternoon, Russell Taylor, 25, fatally shot himself through the right temple. Death occurred about two hours after he was found at 415 by a sister, Catherine, who was returning home.

Although the young man had been ailing for about a year and had recently lost his job with Katz Brothers Meat Market of Iola, no motive could be given for the act. He had returned from Iola to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taylor Sunday evening, apparently in good spirits. No account of his movements Monday afternoon could be given.

An investigation was conducted by District Attorney Stanley A. Staidt, John Lappen, Outagamie-co sheriff, Dr. E. Ellsworth, coroner, and Chief of Police R. H. McCarthy. It was decided that no inquest is necessary.

Chapel Hour Is Smoking Time On Edge Of Campus

A bell rings, and out of the quickly opened doors of historic old hall at Lawrence college pour hundreds of hurrying figures. As the laughing and chattering stream of humanity reaches the street, it breaks apart, and smaller groups leave the main body.

Members of these smaller groups quickly congregate, hands reach in to passers, cigarettes are produced, matches flicker, and a cloud of blue smoke lazily begins to curl over the heads of the figures.

Soon, however, another bell rings. A long, last, puff is taken, the crowd when the shooting took place. An investigation of the wound by Dr. A. Leach, showed the bullet had entered completely through Taylor's head. An automatic pistol was used.

Born in Fort Atkinson, Taylor came to Kaukauna in 1917 with his parents. He attended Nicolet grade school, and spent two years in Kaukauna high school. He also attended the Kaukauna vocational school.

He had been employed by the Lehrer Meat market at Kaukauna for about eight years previous to his employment by Katz Brothers at Iola.

Survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taylor, two sisters, Mary and Catherine, and one brother, John.

$750.00 Cash Offered For Name of Movie Actress

Reward Will Be Paid Everyone Who Submits Most Suitable Name

From Hollywood comes an extraordinary announcement. A movie actress is in need of a name, and $750.00 in cash will be paid for the best suggestion. You can give her yours, or any other name you think of, it may mean $750.00 to you.

This movie actress, whom you have probably seen on the screen of your favorite motion picture theatre, is the beautiful Helen Mann. Like most of the stars, she prefers to use a name other than her own, and in order to help her obtain it, $750.00 in cash is offered to anyone who is quick in sending in the name selected.

Miss Mann's publicity director says, "Most any name may be used. It may be your very own, a name of a friend or relative, or a coined name made up by you. Readers of this announcement are urged to send their suggestions for a name at once, because $250.00 extra will be given the winner if name is mailed and postmarked before December 6, 1931. Just make it easy to pronounce and easy to remember. But send it right away, or you may be late for the promptness prize."

quickly disperses and once more the street assumes normalcy, except for the litter of discarded butts covering the intersection.

This scene can be witnessed at 10 o'clock almost any Monday Wednesday, or Friday morning when the regular convocation exercises for Lawrence students open at the chapel. Due to a tradition, which decrees that there is no smoking on the campus, the north-west corner of the intersection at Park and College-aves, some 100 feet apart, is the forbidden territory. It has become known as "the chapel" and has become a place where students must "hang out" before the chapel program.

The custom has become so universal that it is now a fairly entrenched habit. A group of about 60 men can be seen at the newly formed intersection any of the "chapel" days.

New York—The most mild destroyer of Communism since the last run. True to the name, and in service, it was only a matter of time before the "chapel" would be at top speed through the streets in an attempt to get it. A New York Times reporter, who was with the mother ship, said the going was too rough.

All entries must be sent to the Publicity Director's office, E. A. Williams, Studio A-551 1213 N. Broadway Ave., Hollywood, California. Only one suggestion for a name should be submitted by each contestant. Everyone is invited to submit a name, and in case of ties, duplicate awards will be given. AIR OPINIONS ON TRUCK TAX AT HEARINGS

Private Trucking Firms Opposed to Exemption of Farmers' Vehicles

Opinions regarding the proposed act for levying a ton mile tax on motor vehicle hauling companies operating truck on highways of Wisconsin were aired in public hearings conducted in the city hall here Monday afternoon and evening by the Public Service commission. Approximately 150 persons attended the afternoon session, and 100 were at the evening meeting. Anderson appeared here in behalf of the commission, and took testimony offered by various representatives of trucking firms and common carriers.

Because the new statute, approved on July 3, 1931, and effective Jan. 1, 1932, affects so many interests that the widest possible knowledge of its provisions is essential for effective and equitable administration, these hearings are being conducted throughout the state.

It was pointed out that before the commission adopts any definite plan for procedure or method of enforcement, it desires that every interested party be advised of its tentative interpretations of those portions of the law about which there may be some confusion, and of interpretation of other portions which may be construed to give the commission some leeway.

WOMEN'S EXEMPT FARMERS

It was the opinion of representatives of several trucking firms from Oshkosh, Green Bay, Fond du Lac, Appleton and other neighboring cities, who attended the hearings here, that farmers should not be exempt from taxation, because under provisions of the statute, there would be nothing stopping them from loading their trucks with freight on the return trip.

According to the statute, vehicles of three tons and under, the weight figured on the net weight of the vehicle plus licensed carrying capacity are exempt if they have been accorded licenses in the A, B, and C classes. Vehicles with Class D, E, and F licenses owned or operated by the state or one of its political subdivisions, and those with Class D, E and F licenses used exclusively in the handling of dairy and other farm products between the point of production and the primary market also would be exempt, according to the act. Vehicles with Class D, E and F licenses used only within the corporate limits of villages and cities also are included under the exemptions to the statute.

Representatives of trucking firms stated that it would be impossible to check up on farmers who carry their products to the market and then load up with coal, or other commodities for the return trip.

It was pointed out that private trucking firms will have to pay tax for hauling freight to a particular destination, and returning with an empty truck.

Point of Production. The point of production, means the farm where the livestock is prepared for disposal, where milk is produced, agricultural products are raised, or the place where farm dairy products are made, it was stated.

It was the opinion of several representatives of cheese manufacturing plants that their trucks also be exempt from taxation, but it was pointed out that under the interpretation of "primary market," in the usual and normal course of marketings, dairy and other farm products, they pass out of the possession or control of the producer, irrespective of whether such dairy and other farm products are transported to "primary market" in a vehicle owned and operated by the producer or in a vehicle operated by the agent of such producer.

BOTTLE IS HURLED THROUGH WINDOW OF ELSNER RESIDENCE

Police this morning were investigating the hurling of a bottle through a front window at the home of Mrs. L. H. Elsner, 1329 N. Oneida-st. shortly after midnight last night. Police were notified of the act immediately and a squad car patrolled the vicinity. Police Chief George T. Palm said the department has several clues. It is the second time in less than two weeks that a similar malicious act has been committed at the Elsner home and it is the third occurrence of a similar nature in the city in two months.

The first time it happened someone threw a fruit jar through a window of the residence of Hoch Perske, 1102 N. Union-st. In the second case a slunk. This happened on Saturday night, Oct. 24. About 4:30 on the morning of Sunday, Nov. 21, someone threw a paving block through a front window at the Elsner home.

COUNCIL MEETS TOMORROW NIGHT

Little Business Officially Scheduled, According to Records

Though every corner of city hall is buzzing with this and that speculation, very little business is officially scheduled for the council meeting Wednesday night. Out of the maze of present subrosa discussion may come two or three matters that will call for long argument from the floor, but as yet few have reached definite enough form to be presented at a formal meeting.

The council held a long informal meeting last night, and a survey of the subjects discussed would indicate that, in addition to the coming budget meetings, the city fathers are due for a considerable number of long sessions before the first of the year. Most of these may be informal, or in the committee of the whole, but none the less important.

BOARD COMPLETES PROTEST HEARINGS

City Employees Busy Deducting 15 Per Cent from Assessment Roll

The hearing on the assessment protest of the Fox River Paper company, which has been before the board of review since last Friday, was completed Tuesday noon. The last ends of three or four other cases must be finished before the board can adjourn.

A soon as all hearing are completed, which probably will be Wednesday, the council can begin to make plans for the preparation of the budget. Practically every one in city hall now is busy with the deduction of 15 per cent from the assessment roll, and as soon as this is done and the total evaluation of the city is known, the council can seriously consider the establishment of the tax rate.

JURY DELIBERATES IN SUIT FOR DAMAGES

A jury in circuit court this afternoon was deliberating on a verdict in the suit for $570 damages brought by the Krasno Quality Egg company of Milwaukee against Sidney Klurfield, wholesale egg dealer at Kaukauna. The Milwaukee firm asks payment for 100 cases of eggs which it claims it sold Klurfield in July, 1931. He gave the firm a check for $570 in payment for the eggs but later stopped payment on the check, charging the eggs were not marketable. Klurfield claims he took the eggs to Chicago where he first sold the eggs but later had to take them back because the firm that made the purchase would not accept them. He claims he then had to sell the eggs on the open market and realized but $425. He asks that the jury award him his expenses for the trip to Chicago and that the balance of the $425 be given to the Milwaukee company for the eggs.

Bones Of Nine Dinosaurs Uncovered In Montana

New York — (AP)—Late last May Marnum Brown, paleontologist of the American Museum of Natural History, set out for Montana, having promised officials of the museum that he would "get them a dinosaur."

Four months later he returned with: "The skeletons of nine huge dinosaurs, approximately 30 million years old, which he had dug up near Billings, Mont."

The remains of a reptile, about 135 million years old, which he had disinterred near Cameron, on the Colorado river, in Arizona.

And an arrow point found in a cave 50 miles from Carlisle, N. M., that he believes supports his theory that men inhabited the North American continent between 15,000 and 20,000 years ago.

A description of Dr. Brown's discoveries and how he found them appears in the January issue of Popular Science Monthly, out today. The magazine states that his nine dinosaur skeletons comprise the largest find ever uncovered by any explorer in one "strike."

Dr. Brown's story of his find, as it appears in the magazine, states that when he started on the trip he knew of the existence of one dinosaur skeleton in the vicinity of Billings, Mont.

"Three years ago," his story runs, "I was working about 50 miles south of Billings when I came upon a fine specimen of a dinosaur. I didn't have enough time to dig it up, so I covered it carefully with clay, just as a dog buries a bone."

"Three of us went out to Montana, P. C. Kaisen, my chief assistant in the field, E. E. Lewis, a naturalist from Yale university, and I. At Billings we were joined by a local man, Darwin Harbicht."

"Sure enough, the beastie was still exactly where I had left it. While we were digging it up, we came up on the skeletons of three others. That made four. Shortly afterward, we discovered five more, making nine in all."

The nine dinosaurs are now at the American museum, and a small army of preparators has gone to work at setting them up—a job that will last several months. Each dinosaur is about the size of a rhinoceros.

The reptile, about three feet long with a skull the width of a man's hand, has not yet been classified, though many of its characteristics indicate, it may be related to the alligator.

The arrow point, the article says, is similar to several he found in a quarry at Polson, N. M., three years ago.

EDWARD HINES, 68, LUMBER MERCHANT, DIES IN CHICAGO

Philanthropist Succumbs to Pneumonia After Long Illness

Chicago — (AP)—Edward Hines, 68, wealthy lumber merchant and philanthropist, died early today after suffering from heart disease for months. He had been unconscious since Saturday. The immediate cause of his death was pneumonia.

Members of his family, who were at his bedside at the time of his death, were his widow, Loretta, his daughter, Mrs. Howell Howard and his sons, Charles and Ralph Hines.

Edward Hines was born in Buffalo, N. Y., July 1, 1863. He moved with his family to Chicago in 1889, and attended the public schools until, at 14, he obtained a job in a grocery. He next became tally boy in a lumber yard and later became office boy for S. K. Martin and Co.

Leaving his post as office boy, he served as bookkeeper, office manager and traveling salesman until, in 1884, when the company was incorporated, Mr. Hines was made secretary and treasurer. He was then only 21 years old.

Firm Grew Rapidly

At 23, he organized and became head of the new Edward Hines Lumber company which grew from an original capitalization of $200,000 to a corporation that covered 45 acres of ground which provided storage space for eighty million feet of lumber. In the west the firm had properties which extended from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific coast. In the west it still has large timber holdings, towns, railroads and numerous mills.

Mr. Hines' political life was varied. He was said to have backed the candidacy of Edward D. White for chief justice of the United States and to have influenced President Taft in the appointment. Hines' friends said that, curiously enough, White and Hines never met.

The lumber merchant gave the federal government 230 acres in Broadview, near Chicago, and $3,000,000 for the construction of the Edward Hines, Jr., Memorial hospital in which hundreds of war veterans are under treatment. The hospital was erected as a memorial to Mr. Hines' father, who died in France during the World war.

Also Mr. Hines contributed $500,000 for the erection of St. Mary of the Lake chapel at Mundelein, Ill. He gave to the School of Forestry at Yale university, the new medical school of the University of Chicago, and numerous other charitable and welfare organizations.

He was a knight commander of St. Gregory and a knight of Malta—both papal titles, and a member of numerous clubs and organizations throughout the country.

ONE CONTAGIOUS CASE REPORTED LAST WEEK

Only one case of contagious disease, diphtheria, was reported to Theodore Sanders, deputy health officer, last week.

While Appleton is remarkably free from contagious diseases at this time and has been for almost a year, Dr. F. P. Doherty, city physician, points out that this is no excuse for carelessness. He urges parents to watch their children carefully, and to isolate, if possible, any child with a cold. No one showing the symptoms of any disease—cold, fever, headache, indigestion—should be permitted to go to school or congregate with other children. Only by careful attention to illness in its early stages can the spread of contagious diseases be checked, he said.

RESERVE OFFICERS MEET AT ZUELKE-BLDG

CHANGE IN OLEO LAW ASKED IN ASSEMBLY BILL

Gehrmann Measure Intended to Remove Unconstitutional Provisions

Madison — (AP)—An attempt to remove the unconstitutional provisions of the oleomargarine tax law enacted at the last regular session of the legislature was made in their assembly last night when Assemblyman B. J. Gehrmann, Mellen, introduced a bill revising the law.

Circuit Judge A. G. Zimmerman, of Dane co recently held the law unconstitutional and issued an injunction restraining Commissioner J. D. Beck of the state department of agriculture and markets from sending out lists to newspapers showing retailers of oleomargarine. Assemblyman Gehrmann's bill seeks to make legal the publication of such lists in addition to correcting other portions of the law. Commissioner Beck last week was found guilty of violating the Zimmerman injunction, and was fined $250 for contempt of court.

The bill changes the statute from a licensing law to a tax or revenue law to meet court objections. It also makes $25 the annual fee to be paid by retailers. The law as it stands requires retailers to pay graduated fees according to the amount of oleomargarine sold. The court held the tax thus derived would be prohibitive.

The bill cuts the boarding house fee from $50 to $5 and makes the law applicable to confectioneries which are assessed a $5 fee.

In addition to paying a $25 fee, retailers would pay a tax of 6 cents on each pound of oleomargarine sold. The manufacturers' fee of $1,000 per year and the wholesalers' fee of $500 annually is retained by the bill.

Building Permits

One building permit was issued Monday by John N. Welland, building inspector. It was granted to Arnold Schinabel, 1320 W. Commercial-st., two car garage, cost $425.

DENTAL SOCIETY TO MEET THIS EVENING

Christmas

It is a serious problem with many parents these days — with so many modern ideas — to find wholesome recreation for their children. Our best educational authorities are sponsoring music as a solution. A child who plays a musical instrument enjoys an advantage over other children. Music makes better students — builds character, perseverance, alertness, and imagination.

What are you going to buy the boy or girl for Christmas? Just consider a Band Instrument. A child will get more comfort and joy out of a band or orchestra instrument than any thing you can buy. And again, you are giving the child an opportunity. Dr. Damrosch of the New York Symphony writes: "Nearly every child is susceptible to good music." They will cultivate a taste for things worth while.

Every child who studies music intelligently becomes a thinker. He or she will add this to the school studies. Nearly every college or school now allows credit for music.

Music! Music! It will go farther to settle our children's problems than anything. Let the children blow off their surplus energy thru a horn — "They will never blow a bank safe"; or let them draw a bow — "They will never draw a gun."

Consider this. Come and see us and we will talk it over — let us help you decide on the proper instrument for your child.

CRASH IN 1929 CUT INCOME TAX IN WISCONSIN

Find 32 Fewer Millionaires in State as Result of Depression

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)
Washington — The year 1929, which began with a boom and ended with a crash, wiped Wisconsin's two richest residents off the financial sheet, lost 32 other millionaires for the state, and showed decreases in the state's reported income and income tax.

In 1928, there were 322 Badgers paying tax on incomes of $50,000 or more, which is considered the income from a million dollars. Of those 322, one had an income of $5,000,000 or more another had an income of from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000. These with two possessing incomes ranging between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 had a combined net income of $10,315,311 on which $1,602,624 tax was paid.

In 1929, the highest income reported for the state was one ranging from $1,800,000 to $2,000,000. The total of millionaires that year was only 453.

These figures were first revealed when the Internal Revenue Bureau today (Monday) made public its report.

Lower Tax
Although there were more persons in Wisconsin in 1929 than in 1928 with incomes sufficient to require their filing income tax returns with Uncle Sam 103,044 in 1929 as against 98,453 in 1928—, and although more returns reported incomes large enough to be taxed in 1929 than in 1928—51,119 as against 50,914—, the state's income and income tax were both lower in 1929.

The 51,119 Badgers with incomes large enough for taxation paid $10,287,029 on net income of $257,558,914 in 1929 as against payments by 50,914 persons of $12,558,319 tax on net income of $340,203,516 in 1928.

The total net income of all persons in the state filing tax returns amounted to $450,894,107 in 1929 as against $453,394,323 in 1928, and of these amounts, $123,565,103 in 1929 and $113,199,747 in 1928 were non-taxable because exemptions exceeded incomes.

Income tax returns were filed by 1,438 residents of Appleton in 1929. A total of 227 came from Kaukauna; 34 from Kimberly; 39 from Little Chute; and 59 from Seymour. Outagamie county as a whole accounted for 1,372.

Returns filed in Neenah equaled 568 and in Menasha, 309.

Returns from neighboring counties were as follows: Brown county, 2,185; Calumet, 263; Oconto, 276; Shawano, 331; Waupaca, 629; Washburn, 194; and Winnebago, 2,709.

A total of 1,945 Badgers lost so much money in 1929 that they had deficits rather than net income to report. Their losses totaled $11,635,724, to make the 14th largest deficit reported by the states.

According to the tax returns, more Wisconsin people had incomes between $1,000 and $2,000 than in any other classification of the $1,115 in this division enough paid tax to make a total of $15,415 for Uncle Sam.

However, the largest tax was paid by 83 millionaire Badgers possessing incomes ranging from $100,000 to $150,000. Their payments of tax totaled $1,160,214.

3.51 Per Cent Filed
Persons filing income tax returns made up 3.51 per cent of Wisconsin's total population in 1929 as against 3.34 per cent in 1928. The 1929 percentage was a bit higher than the 3.28 for the country as a whole. In this most recently reported year, the average income per return in Wisconsin equaled $4,376.13 and the average tax per return, $99.53. Both fell below the nation's averages.

A total of 1,639 returns on income amounting to $6,144,573 were filed in Wisconsin by women heads of families. Other returns filed by women were 10,703 or $32,070,450 by single women, not heads of families, and 1,593 by married women filing separate returns from those of their husbands.

By far the largest portion of Wisconsin persons total income from wages and salaries in 1929 with the second largest total from dividends on stock of domestic corporations. Of the $450,894,107 net incomes reported in tax returns, $252,610,255 came from wages and salaries, and $89,034,483 from stock dividends.

Aggregate gross estate valued at $45,203,455 was left by 133 Badgers who died during 1929. Of this total, 103 estates valued at $40,516,320 were subject to inheritance taxes of $229,351; while the other 30 valued at $5,440,593 were not subject to tax because of exemption.

Save for the boom year 1928 and prosperous 1916, the $4,376.13 average net income reported for Wisconsin people in 1929 was the highest of the past 13 years. In 1916, it was $10,695 and in 1928, $4,693.69. The peak year of average tax was 1916, with $152, and 1928 was second with $126.51.

U. S.-FRENCH ACCORD SEEN AS PRECLUDING DEFLATION OF MONEY

Agree That Gold Dollar
Should Go Back to Its 1926 Basis

Washington — The proposal of President Hoover and Premier Laval for mutual exchange to keep the United States and France on the gold standard may circumvent the monetary deflation some farm spokesmen advocate.

Since France became the banker nation of Europe and the United States acquired about all the gold on this side of the world, farm groups have been studying the relation of what they term the abnormally enhanced monetary values to commodity deflation.

They have agreed, in a general way, that the gold dollar should be deflated to its 1926 basis, which is said to have been more nearly on a par with commodities.

England's suspension of the gold standard and the immediate fall in the pound sterling was pointed to as an example of a deflated monetary unit automatically increasing the value of commodities.

See Credit For England
Some see in the Franco-American accord on gold the possibility of ample credit for England if and when that country may decide to go back to the gold standard, or even a redistribution of bullion.

Such superinduced steadying of money markets would, in supporting the value of gold, preclude the enhancement of commodity values at the expense of the metal.

It is currently expressed in farm circles that just the opposite has been going on since the price level of farm products first broke in 1920. They contend the dollar no longer is "cheaper" because the increasing value of gold has made it almost twice as hard to get in terms of commodities.

Debtors Would Benefit
Advocates of the short cut to commodity inflation say that if congress acted to stabilize the dollar at its 1926 value the burden of debts would be reduced at least 25 per cent and taxes almost as much.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

For coughs due to colds, the best remedy that money could buy is easily mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchitis irritations. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

FROM HIM WHO HATH NOT SHALL BE TAKEN

The so-called Foss-Nixon tax bill framed to produce about 17 million dollars through its various features and which will unquestionably be the center of considerable storm at Madison contains one provision in particular that would be assigned as an error were it not that the governor's message proposed it.

This provision is that in computing the income upon which the surtax is to be levied no deduction for capital losses shall be permitted.

In other words a man cannot deduct from his income positive and unquestioned losses that he has suffered, even as plain ones as resulted to bank stockholders where banks were closed and conditions required a 100 per cent stock assessment.

In an effort to mitigate this plain injustice, and which only serves in accentuating it, the act states that deductions will be allowed if the loss occurred in assets which "constitute the regular stock or trade of the taxpayer, which would properly be included in the inventory if on hand at the close of the year or if the property is held by the taxpayer primarily for sale in the course of his regular trade or business."

It may be a grave question whether any such provision is valid. The constitution gives the legislature a right to tax incomes. It gives no right to tax deficits. It cannot tax zero. It must tax profits. Certainly when a man has had a clear loss in a given year he hasn't had an income.

This is taxation with a vengeance, taking away again from him who already "hath not."

And here is the way it would work out: a grocer can only take losses for his groceries, his inventory, his "regular trade or business" and his loss through defaulted bonds or painful bank stocks cannot be reckoned, but a gambler on the stock market, one rich enough so he has no "regular trade or business" other than investing his funds could because that is his "regular trade or business."

And the indefinite language of this act which leaves in the hands of someone the determination of a fact, whether the loss resulted in property "held by the taxpayer primarily for sale in the course of his regular trade or business" is another thing that should be cleared up.

There is no greater vice in lawmaking than obscurity. But to put doubt into an emergency measure like this, whose purpose is largely defeated by delay, is quite beyond justification.

Assuming that a majority agree that money must be raised for the purpose of constructing needed public improvements, that it should be paid from income taxes upon the principle that payment should be made in relation to one's ability to pay, with both of which principles we agree, it is not expected that the result can be accomplished with perfect justice or that a sharp eye behind a magnifying glass may not be able to point out some inequalities or occasional cases of hardship.

But to say to a man who, through accident or misfortune, has actually ended the year "in the red," that he must still dig up a surtax only omits one element from its beautiful coloring, that of advising him where he can find the money to pay it.

Of course, there is a reason why the administration does not wish to permit the deductions, and that is because of the uncertainty of incomes. It is here face to face with a condition constantly but ineffectively hammered into the public ear by Secretary Mellon, that income taxation is wholly unreliable as a means of steadying national income because it is so uncertain itself.

But even that does not justify a plain injustice.

The administration better be careful that it does not give birth to a monstrosity and bring a whirlwind of reaction.

A few years ago, due to the overlapping of inheritance tax laws, an estate was probated in which the taxes actually exceeded the value of the entire estate. The United States levied a tax upon the whole estate, the state wherein the deceased lived levied another, and each state in which he happened to hold stock in some resident corporation levied further taxes. When the whole thing was added up the heirs threw up their hands and let the estate go.

A fair system of taxation brings life, insures justice and, eventually, contentment.

This proposal does not.

A CENTURY OF "BUILDING AND LOAN"

Just 100 years ago at Frankford, a suburb of Philadelphia, was established the Oxford Provident Building Association, whose original plan of financing the construction of homes, gradually altered and improved through the experience of its founders and their successors, has become an established part of American institutions.

At a time when home construction is featured and emphasized as it now is in this country and when other instrumentalities are suggested to furnish the necessary sinews of financing, it is well to look about and view the unusual record of accomplishment of these organizations.

We have cities, St. Paul and Minneapolis are examples, that were almost entirely built up under this system. The plan is generally considered conservative and similar plans have had unusual development in England resulting there too in the construction of entire communities called "Garden Cities."

While the systems in vogue differ slightly in different states the basic principle is the issuing of stock which is paid for in monthly installments, and this money is loaned to shareholders, borrowers very often paying twice as much per month as lenders.

The League of Building and Loan associations reported in 1916, 6806 local associations; this number has since grown to 11,767. And the assets have increased from about a billion and a half in 1916 to well over eight billion in 1931.

While this looks like a great amount of money—as it is—it is not sufficient to finance the home building which is recommended for the country.

The President's plan is to create associations that will issue bonds. His thought is that the bonds will find a steadier market than stock in building and loan associations, and therefore find larger sums for investment from moneyed people.

The enviable record and reputation of these building and loan associations suggests the careful examination of all possible factors and angles to ascertain whether or not they cannot themselves undertake and finance the extensive program recommended. It does not look like a happy idea to lightly cast aside such a favored and successful instrumentality, for these associations, even during the past year of hardship, claim a loss to investors of less than one-one hundredth of 1 per cent, an indicator of exceeding safety.

Moreover, they have the experience, the system and the conservatism that has built up this factor of safety. New methods, new companies, perhaps with untold leaders plunging about in order to get great paper returns, and not giving to each individual problem the careful personal and financial examination so necessary for ultimate success, may result in a great shrinkage in the value of the bonds issued and a loss of the invested moneys such as resulted on the joint stock land bonds issued to help agriculture.

Certainly the country wants no further repetition of that bungle.

THE TOOTING SWAIN
We are interested in the story of Miss Mary Ida Kane, of Peckskill, N. Y., now in jail under sentence for attempted assault. If we had our way, we should take her out of the Peckskill hoosegown, set her up as a protector of the people's welfare, and cite her for the Carnegie or the Congressional medal or even the Nobel prize.

For Miss Kane has had the rare courage to reply to a young man who called for her by buzzing his automobile horn with two or three shots from her father's rifle. She didn't kill him, which in itself shows symptoms of herculean self-control. She didn't even wound him, which demonstrates to us, at least, a temper nothing short of angelic. Our readers will have noted that she was charged only with "attempted assault"; all she did was send a few bullets through the young man's headlights and radiator cap.—New Haven Journal-Courier.

APPARENTLY Secretary Stimson and the Japanese foreign office have made up their difficulties . . . they've blamed all the harsh words on the Associated Press and the Rengo News Agency (Japanese) . . . but dawned, we can't understand why more mistakes aren't made during translations from English to Japanese . . . or vice-versa . . . English as languages . . . is one of the most difficult, illogical and inconsistent of tongues . . . and you have your own opinion about the Japanese language . . . but, as we started out to say, it's nice that the secretary of state and the Japanese foreign office could blame things on the news agencies . . . maybe we won't go to war after all . . . which, since we're writing on one of the bleakest of Monday mornings, is a trifle disappointing . . .

Tin Pan Alley often puts a terrific strain on a patient public with some of its tunes, but none deserves the gate any sooner than that "My Bluebird Is Back Again" thing. Five times we heard it over the radio the other night, and that probably wasn't all. It was five times too many. Besides, bluebirds haven't been doing so well for a couple of years.

The Bronx Cheer Should Still Be Given
People who call up and say "Guess who this is" are invariably large pains-in-the-neck. Yesterday the world's worst phoned us.

"What's that you printed in your column about the state of Wisconsin giving Michigan a Bronx cheer?" the world's worst asked—only in poorer English.

"What?" we asked.

"Didn't you say that Wisconsin was going to beat Michigan?" continued the world's worst.

"No," we told him, which was perfectly true, because the lad who picked results for us said that.

"Well, . . . why didn't you pick a GOOD school like Michigan?" and the world's worst kept on at that rate until we hung up the receiver. He sounded like one of two gentes—one who went to Michigan and the other who couldn't get in—and he represented the Michigan side-line attitude perfectly.

A better team beat Wisconsin, BUT—what about the 3,000 who attended the game in a 70,000 capacity stadium? The University of Michigan, in borrowing that game, hurt nothing except the vital need of this country for more money for charity.

But the vital needs of a country during a critical period such as today mean nothing to a GOOD school like Michigan.

There are 25,000 fewer millionaires in the country than before the crash. Will the people who have been sending us bills please keep that in mind?

Thank gawd there's only one Monday a week.

RE-BIRTH
We're at home once more when the good friends call.
And we're back on earth as our natural selves;
Now the patient books which have lined the wall,
Have come to life on their dusty shelves.

Across the way is a neighbor, too,
Who just like the books has stood for years,
Patiently waiting, as if he knew
Some day he would share in our smiles and tears.

We have been away on a mad, wild chase,
Seeking for pleasure in haunts afar;
Now we're back once more at the starting place,
And we've learned how blinding the follies are.

It seems we have come through a strange re-birth.
Or from years long spent on a foreign shore,
To learn the lesson of life on earth,
And to claim the joys which we missed before.

Personal Health Talks
By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

5. PNEUMONIA IS A TROPICAL DISEASE
Hare's "Practice of Medicine," published in 1905, says:

"Exposure to cold was thought for many years to be a cause of pneumonia (that is local) pneumonia, but we now know that this only acts as a predisposing cause which decreases the general systemic, or local, powers of resistance to infection; in other words, it is prone to affect all persons whose vital resistance is diminished."

But this distinguished author and teacher failed to explain how we are to know that cold decreases powers of resistance. What he meant and would have said if not given to such loose expression as the sentence shows, is that he and most good doctors of his day had changed their theories to jibe with the newer knowledge of the infectious or bacterial causation of pneumonia. Being ponderous gentlemen accustomed to "pronouncing" things, they couldn't very well admit they had been wrong in thinking that exposure to cold caused pneumonia. So they heug-d, and got away with it.

Colder's "Practice of Medicine," published in 1905, says:

"Cold has been for years regarded as an important etiological factor. The frequent occurrence of an initial chill has been one reason for this widespread belief. Cold is regarded simply as a factor in lowering the resistance of the bronchial and pulmonary tissues."

Sir William likewise failed to divulge the secret of his knowledge that cold lowers resistance of the lungs or bronchial tubes. That was just one of his pet fables or fancies, and he clung to it right up to the very end of his life.

In fact no medical or scientific authority or author or teacher, so far as I can learn, and I've been searching for years, offers any light on this familiar conception or "lowered resistance." It is not immunity, certainly, for known immunity has no apparent relation to cold, wet, exposure of weather. What is it? Well, I suspect nobody knows. It's just a handy little way out of an embarrassing situation.

All animal experiments, and the few experiments, tried with human subjects, have proved very disappointing to those who sought to show that exposure to cold renders an individual more likely to contract or develop a disease with which he is inoculated or to which he is exposed.

But what do the great medical authorities or the big shot doctors of our own day care for scientific evidence? They've conceded the cold doesn't cause the disease; try and make him concede it doesn't even predispose to disease. Some of the old timers might even admit that this alternative theory is wrong, too, only they're afraid some of us low-life cynics might emit too loud a guffaw at the surrender. Besides, the quaint notion saves a lot of diagnoses to effort. Most glibly folk are willing to hope the indisposition is a "cold," till something alarming happens. By that time they're too ill to think what a trick the doctor has played on them.

Pneumonia at one time threatened to stop the building of the Panama canal, so many of the laborers contracted it. The menace ceased when Dr. Gorgas showed the authorities how to spread out the sleeping bunks so that the laborers did not sleep within spray range of one another. Pneumonia became a serious handicap to the laborers on the canal in South Africa, and they sent for Dr. Gorgas, who introduced similar hygienic measures and put a stop to the epidemic.

Pneumonia is more properly called a tropical disease. It is indeed strikingly rare in very cold climates.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Eye Strain
On account of my work my eyes are considerably strained. I have been using (eye wash nostrum) Would you advise me to continue with this? I do not see much effect from it. (Mrs. R. F.)

Answer—It is unwise to use any drops or other medication in the eyes, unless the medicine is prescribed for your particular disease by your oculist or physician.

Drinking Salt Water
Should a person drink a pint or more of water containing a teaspoonful of salt, first thing every morning, without consulting a doctor about the amount of salt the body can stand? (Mrs. G. A. F.)

Answer—It is a healthful habit to take a large drink of water first thing in the morning or before breakfast, preferably cold water, but feeble or elderly persons may take it hot. I do not believe it is advisable to take so much salt.

Too Much Movie
My son, aged 17, in his third year of high school, is very fond of moving. He goes every night if possible, and attends two shows on Sunday. Is this good for the nerves? (Mother.)

Answer—No. Once a week is often enough for a normal boy to attend movie shows.

Circumcision
Our son is 8 weeks old. We are anxious to have him circumcised as early as it is safe. Our family doctor advised us to wait till he is 3 or 4 years old. However, we learn that many physicians advise it before the child is 2 weeks old. (M. C. P.)

Answer—My advice is not to circumcise at all unless there is some special indication for it, and then of course it should be done at once. (Copyright John F. Dillon Co.)

Seen And Heard In New York

BY WILLIAM GAINES
New York — Picture, if you can a flowing emerald green bow tie against a soft white collar and pale blue striped shirt; a pearl gray double-breasted vest and a brown coat with pin stripes; black trousers with a fine white line, gray spats and shiny, pointed black shoes. Oh, yes, and a kerchief in the coat pocket.

In that ensemble, conceive of a lean man with the face sharpened to nose and chin points. A strip of moustache flowing over the corners of his thin lips and an abbreviated goatee. Scrawny, long gray hair, parted in the middle. Large, silver-rimmed spectacles, hooked to prominent ears.

Top the whole of the picture with a slouch hat and you have—not necessarily a musical comedy count, but William J. Gussard, most eccentric of all the "public relations counsels," who is the outfit for approved news about the Metropolitan Opera company.

Guard, who would pass more readily as French or Italian, was born in Erin. His father was a Methodist minister.

His English is without accent; he speaks both French and Italian and a little German. He plays the flute, violin and piano.

Next March he will be 70, but he's as chipper and frisky as a 7-year-old. Temperamentally he can hit as high a note as any prima donna in the mad house which is back-stage Met.

When he and the bushy haired Martinevi, who drops into his office to gag with him, are through with opera, they should team in vaudeville with a mad jazz band and three clown seals.

How Shocking
A woman's social club of a suburban town selected the outspoken and undressed "Vanities" for its annual theatre party in the big town. The women chartered special buses for their parade into the city.

Recalling the loss of sleep this particular revue is supposed to have caused some other women's organizations, the choice of the club puzzles one.

But, we may suppose, the ladies must have something to "ah me, her goodness" about through the winter knitting seasons.

Movies Loot Rialto
Three veteran actresses, among the most favored of Broadway's stage folk, are in the bag consigned to Hollywood as the result of recent raids by the movie barons.

Violet Hemming, who makes another howl to film fans, truly is a child of the theatre. Her mother was an actress of reputation and on her father's side, one of her forbears was one Hemming, an eighteenth century Shakespearean interpreter of some renown. She made her stage debut as a child, playing Wendy in "Peter Pan."

Vivienne Osborn also was a child of the theatre. At 5 she appeared in "East Lynne."

Mary Boland, who has signed another film contract, rounds out the trio. She was 15 when she started on the stage with Robert Edson in "Strongheart."

Today's Anniversary

BREAK BRITISH LINE
On Dec. 1, 1917, the German forces broke through the British line south of Villers-Guislain and advanced almost two miles, reaching Gouzeaucourt.

The Germans, however, were repulsed in a new attack on Meuse. French troops beat off an attack at Fosses Wood. American and Canadian engineers, working on British railways in the vicinity, joined in the battle at Gouzeaucourt.

The kings of Norway, Denmark and Sweden on this date agreed to stick together, irrespective of the length of the war. They also agreed to maintain neutrality toward all belligerent powers.

The German Reichstag voted a credit of 15,000,000,000 marks ($3,000,000,000).

Since the United States entered the war a total of 135,000 men in various branches of military service have died been wounded or reported captured, according to a report of the War Department.

Insanity is increasing in Canada (with liquor) and decreasing in New York (with prohibition). Evidently the basis for that discovery is the nuts.

People in Somerset, England, use a rose to pay tribute. If the people in America use anything to pay tribute, it's a turkey.

ASK WISCONSIN DRYS TO GATHER IN WASHINGTON

Anti-Saloon League to Confer on Plans for 1932 Election

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—Recognizing that the coming year is one of "critical importance" to prohibition, F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America, has invited the Wisconsin superintendent, the Rev. Warren G. Jones, and other state and district officials to a conference here Jan. 15-19.

In issuing the invitation to the superintendents, McBride requested that each bring with him the answers to the following questions:

"What presidential candidates are most likely to receive the support of delegates from your state?"

"Is the number of dry U. S. senators and representatives in congress in your state likely to be increased or decreased as a result of the next primary and election?"

"Will your next state legislature be wet, dry, or doubtful?"

Already the "drys" have lost two of their four adherents they had in the Wisconsin congressional delegation. Rep. Gerald Bollen of Wausau defeated Rep. Edward E. Browne of Waupaca, prohibition being the chief issue. Rep. Thomas Amble of Ekhorn was elected to succeed the late Rep. Henry Allen Cooper of Racine, defeating a candidate with a dry record.

Only Two Drys

This leaves only Reps. John M. Nelson of Madison and James A. Freed of Hudson as the only drys in the Wisconsin congressional delegation. Likewise, Sen. Robert M. LaFollette Jr. has come out more definitely against prohibition in the last year.

McBride predicts that "the well-financed wet forces are determined to make their supreme effort in 1932. It is their hope that the economic earthquake will shake drys out of congress and a wet into the White House and they are preparing to take full advantage of the business situation," the drys generalissimo's letter to his subordinate officer says.

In addition to the state office in Milwaukee, the anti-saloon league has district offices in Madison and Eau Claire.

Returning congressmen say that Wisconsin is more emphatically against prohibition than ever before and more determined to do something about it.

"The people are outraged and disgusted," says Rep. George J. Schneider of Appleton. "President Hoover and the administration do not seem to recognize the strength of the revolt against prohibition."

Pointing out that all elections to fill congressional vacancies this fall have resulted in the election of wets even in Texas, Rep. Schneider forecasts that next year's elections will oust still more drys to be supplanted by congressmen determined upon modification or repeal.

"KIDS" BUILD OWN ICE RINK AS COLD WEATHER APPEARS

Limbering up their rusty joints for half twirls, figure eights and dips on the ice, first skaters of the season were seen skimming along the glassy surface of Mud Creek over the weekend. Kids on Vibes found skating possible on the shallow surface of a vacant lot, so pails and pails of water were seen streaming from neighboring houses Saturday night. The result was a slushy hardness with all the neighborhood turning from skating to sledding on Sunday.

Miss Pearl Stroebe, whose home is on Stroebe Island, spent most of Thanksgiving day on the ice near Lee House at Mud Creek. She reports that several people were out skating during the last three days. Miss Stroebe, the daughter of Harry Stroebe, has skated every winter since she was six years old.

City Noises Blamed For Some Digestive Ailments

Cleveland—(AP)—When you eat amid a lot of noise it will be helpful if you partake of foods that stimulate digestion, such as candy, coffee and cinnamon toast.

So members of the Acoustical Society of America meeting here were informed today by Dr. Donald H. Laird, director of the Colgate University Psychological Laboratory at Hamilton, N. Y.

For if you eat in noisy places, he said, you get indigestion. Noise slows down the flow of gastric juice in your stomach and saliva in your mouth.

Just how much different noises affect these secretions was measured by Dr. Laird and his staff.

"During a period of relative quiet the normal volume of saliva secreted from one of the saliva ducts in the mouth averaged 0.41 of a cubic centimeter every five minutes for all the experimental subjects," he said.

"The marked inhibiting effect of noise upon this secretion for various intensities of sound is as follows for the same subjects during the same length of time: Quiet conversation reduced the secretion to 0.34 cubic centimeters; moderate restaurant chatter to 0.25; the noise of Fifth-ave and 43rd-st. N. Y. 0.23 and loud radio or subway noise to 0.21 cubic centimeters.

"The noise intensity of 50 decibels (that of Fifth-ave and 43rd-st) cuts down the normal secretion of saliva by about 43 per cent."

"It is not just the boiler factory succeeded unless you are willing to 'stay put'."

You are thoroughly good company, and are almost universally liked. You create wonderful first impressions, and breed a confidence which is not always merited. You always intend to make good, but lack the patience and staying qualities to always do so. You are a great success with children and they adore you.

CHIEF JUSTICE OF KANSAS HIGH COURT ON BENCH 47 YEARS

William A. Johnston, "Grand Old Man" of State, in His 84th Year

Topeka, Kas.—(AP)—After 47 years on the bench, William A. Johnston, chief justice of the Kansas Supreme court, still finds enjoyment in the work and the cases as interesting as when he began donning them nearly half a century ago.

Now in his 84th year and said by his friends to be the dean of judges in point of continuous service in English speaking courts of last resort, the "Grand Old Man" of Kansas today entered his 47th year on the same bench.

As to retirement, a veteran justice, eight times honored by voters of the state with re-election, told an interviewer:

"I have no purpose to stay on here longer than I am able and useful in transaction of the business of the court, but I have no intention to retire until I am either retired by the voters or some other reason may enforce my retirement."

The term he now is serving will expire in 1933.

Seldom has he missed a day's work. The chief justice arises early for breakfast at 7 o'clock, walks a couple of blocks to his office around 8, and works until 4 o'clock, with time out for lunch on Sundays he attends the Presbyterian church.

His office door is always open to attorneys and visitors, friends wonder when he finds time to prepare opinions, but he has written approximately 3,000 spread through 192 of the 135 volumes of the court's reports.

Mystery Story Fan

Chief Justice Johnston says his avocation is law and his recreation is walking and "keeping up" with events of the world by reading newspapers and magazines. He is a charter member of the Mystery and Detective Story Reading circle.

He believes the lawyers of today "who have had the advantage of law school training, are better informed and have a better means of preparation" than their predecessors. But the lawyers of yester year, he says, "have never been excelled in reasoning from the fundamental principles of law and equity."

The chief justice acquired his early legal training in a law office in Appleton, Wis., after migrating to the United States from Canada—his birthplace. He's proud of his American blood.

He met and married Mrs. Johnston at week to and Mrs. Johnston celebrated their 14th wedding anniversary. They were married on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 25, 1875, and each year when the dates do not coincide they observe the anniversary twice—on Nov. 25 and on Thanksgiving day.

"But I give only one present," the chief justice said.

Chief Justice Johnston believes prohibition has been a success in Kansas. For other states, his comment is "that's a political question and we are not supposed to discuss politics."

Your Birthday

WHAT TOMORROW MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE
"SAGITTARIUS"

If December 2nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:35 a. m., from 1:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. and from 7:45 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 5:30 p. m. to 7 p. m.

No outstanding events can be foretold for December 2nd, and a depressing atmosphere will prevail. It would be well to remember that every "today well lived makes yesterday a dream of happiness and every tomorrow a vision of hope." Something good, something interesting, something lasting, can be carved out of the material at hand.

The child born on this December 2nd will develop slowly, but although a lap behind those of its own age during its early years, it will eventually pass most of its associates. A retentive memory, a plodding spirit, and a happy disposition are its principal assets. No little success is shown.

Born on December 2nd, the pictures of what you could be and do, and what are, and have done are quite different. Your precocious tendencies as a child augured well for your future, and the world expected you to fill no mediocre place. With proper application and time, you could have fitted yourself to become a master of your trade or profession. As it is, however, you indifferently accept a much inferior role. Because of the easiness with which you learn, you never properly apply yourself, and your knowledge is of a superficial nature. You are a very intelligent being, but not an intellectual one. You are not mentally ambitious.

You want to be on the move, to see things and to go places. To satisfy this desire, sacrifices have to be made. You are always making new friends and ties, and your material prospects are always of an uncertain quantity. You cannot really

A candy Cascaret a night—the next morning you're feeling fine. Breath is sweetened; tongue cleared, biliousness, headaches, dizziness, gas vanish. Repeat the treatment two or three nights to get the souring waste out of your system. See how appetite and energy return; how digestion improves.

The action of Cascarets is sure, complete, helpful to everyone. They are made from cascara which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. All drug stores have the 10c boxes.

Take Views Of Children On Clothing

BY ANGELO PATRI

When you buy new clothes for the children consult their tastes. If they are very young do this indirectly and take charge of the buying yourself. If they are older, let them go with you and have a voice in the selection. But there is one thing to know. The children want to look like all the other children in the school. If it is a year for red sweaters although your preference is for navy blues. If plaids are in style you must buy plaids though you long for quiet tints and unbroken surfaces. Children are conventional to painful degree. The pain is ours, not theirs. They revel in the law of the herd and punish any deviation severely. Each dreads the eye of the other.

You may have left your childhood so far in the past that you cannot think of this without impatience. Better try to recall it for your children's sake. They have enough pain to endure without inviting any. The tears the child sheds because of his shoes are real tears born of real sorrow. The smiles of joy he sheds upon the world when his things are right are real smiles born of a happy spirit. Surely acquiescence to the stylings of the hour is a cheap price to pay for a child's peace of mind.

That peace of mind reflects upon his health. A happy child can eat, digest, and assimilate his food when it would be quite impossible for him to look at food in an unhappy mood. Joy stimulates growth. Any time you can secure a little more of it for the children don't hesitate to capture it. It is scarce and often costs more than in this instance.

There is no need of fear that he will always long to wear the uniform of the factory minded. Adolescence breaks all rules. The boy who demanded a real sweater with a square collar and three white lines about it and the cuffs, will search the town for a sweater that will do his individuality justice. The loudest, most personal touch is none too much. He has to be toned down in order to fit in at all. Childhood is the conservative period. We must respect this phase of growth and use its conservatism for all it is worth.

There are limits in this as in other directions. It is seldom that little children ask for things that are unsuitable. Their conservatism safeguards them but now and then one will ask for something that is out of question. One little boy wanted red handkerchiefs for school and a little girl wanted a party dress for church and school. As soon as it was pointed out that the other children would not have such things the matter was settled. All little children want to be like all other little children.

With adolescence the variations set in and then we have to let the children learn by experience. If we have handled them wisely in childhood the troubles are less than they

CONTRACT BIDDING IN AUCTION BRIDGE TOURNAMENT PLAY

Former Game Gains Favor at Expense of Latter Among Experts

Philadelphia —(AP)—According to the program they're playing auction bridge the first two days of the national championship tournament this week. So strong a hold has contract taken on the addicts of the card table, however, that the bidding and the play in these events smacks strongly on the newer game.

George Reith and Mrs. Robert Fuller of New York won the national championship of mixed pairs at auction last night but the contract influence tugged even their game. The new champions said they preferred contract.

William E. McKenney of Cleveland, secretary of the American Bridge league, which is sponsoring the tournament, went so far as to predict that the auction championship will be dropped after this year. "Auction is fast dying out for tournament play," he said. "Two years ago contract took up only one day of the week's program. Last year two days were given to contract, and this year we find auction slipping practically out of the tournament. I really doubt if auction will be even on the program next year."

Cites Example

One instance of how inveterate contract players carried over their habit of deceptive bidding to the auction tables was furnished by Mrs. P. H. Sims of Deal, N. J. She and her husband, one of the foremost bridge exponents of the country, finished ninth in the mixed pairs tournament.

LITTLE THEATRE PLAY SATURDAY AFTERNOON

The Little Theater of the Fox River Valley will open its first season with Stevenson's colorful children's epic, "Treasure Island," at 2:30 Saturday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial chapel. The organization, which has its nucleus in a group of players who produced single children's productions for the last three years, is in its first real year of existence. The purpose of the civic group is to present children's plays to the community, including two adult plays in its seasonal repertoire.

The production committee has finished its last work on the stage sets, using a large pirate ship as the central background. Leo Gardiner, Wilson junior high school teacher, heads this group, assisted by Harold Hauret, Appleton high school student.

The play reading committee is working on the second production scheduled for January. Casts will be chosen for the next play within a few weeks and rehearsals will begin under the direction of Mrs. F. Theodore Cloak, director of the Little Theater.

INJUNCTION DENIED IN INSULL UTILITIES CASE

Chicago —(AP)—A petition for an injunction restraining directors of the Insull Utilities Investment, Inc., from issuing a 5 per cent dividend totalling $750,000 was denied yesterday by Judge E. Gentzell of the superior court. The judge explained his action by saying the dividend, payable today, was already mailed out to stockholders by check yesterday.

He continued until today arguments in the receivership suit filed by Fred Griesel, a minority stockholder. Griesel charged that payment of the dividend would throw the corporation into insolvency.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Dr. Raynor's question, "What have you done to yourself?" Ruth Bradley flushed a little deeper.

"Nothing," she lied. "Nothing at all. How do you know how I look? You've never looked at me before."

Courage born of a flaming red lipstick was making her say things that she couldn't have said 10 minutes before.

"I have. I used to spend all of my time watching you in the hospital. And it hasn't been more than a year since I wound up my interne work and came home and met Sally. You finished your stuff a little later."

Ruth was wishing that he would go. He had been kind enough in the old days. They had laughed together. Worked together. Played together. There was a rainy night when they had found a queer little fish shanty about ready to tumble into the bay, and another—but it only hurt to think about it. They had never been anything but good friends. He had not thought of her romantically at all. Just as a good scout. He had told her so. And then he had met Sally—

And Sally wasn't cut out to be a good scout. She was the kind of girl who belonged in a silken room with men bringing her gifts. Not on a prairie schooner doing her half.

Ruth thought that she hated Dr. Raynor because he had been trapped by Sally. But she knew, just as well, that if she didn't hate him she would love him. Suddenly she wanted to do something to wound him. She didn't care what.

She didn't know why she felt this way unless it was the memory of Sue Thornton, starchy-eyed and happy with everything she wanted in her grasp, who had come singing up the steps of her home.

It wasn't fair, Ruth was thinking, that she should have this queer, smothered sensation and Sue should be so happy.

After all, Dr. Raynor needn't act as though she had no more life than a glass of warm water before breakfast.

"Anyway, Ruth, my dear efficient one, you've got a remarkable pair of lips!"

"Oh stop talking about my lips," she flamed back. "And don't call me efficient again!"

"But you are, you know." His voice was puzzled.

"Oh, yes?"

It was bitter irony that had given the young physician a position on the medical staff of the public schools and put her in the same department, her inner thoughts went on dimly.

"This is the first spunk you have shown for months," the young doctor continued. "You used to argue with me. But now you act almost—scared?" Is it my great fame as a healer of measles and sore throats?

Ruth couldn't tell him that it was Sally. That she was criticized for every move she made, every word she said, until she was afraid to make a sound. He adored Sally, and when men adored girls they were blinded by glamor. She could do nothing but keep quiet.

"Anyway, you're beautiful to-night. You always were but I sort of forgot it."

"Because Sally was around?" She couldn't resist that one.

"You're her twin, so I'll forgive you," he answered. "You do have nice legs, too—almost as nice as Sally's." He came to attention then. "Doing anything tonight? Then, listen, darling one, will you take in the dance with me?"

NEXT: Plans.

MY NEIGHBOR Says —

To clean windows in freezing weather, moisten a soft cloth with kerosene instead of water.

Gelatin for fruit desserts should be whipped until it is the consistency of whipped cream, thick enough to prevent the fruits settling to the bottom of the mold.

Bedrooms should be well ventilated. If an open window makes too much of a draft on the bed, fit a board six or eight inches high and rest the top of the window below the lower sash. This gives a constant exchange of air between the two sashes, slightly warming the air as it passes in.

Always put your knife in boiling water for a few seconds before cutting cake that has been iced. You will then be able to cut without breaking the icing.

FOREHEADS ARE TOO IMPORTANT TO NEGLECT

BY ALICIA HART

New coiffures bring foreheads into such prominence that they must be fair or not do their bit for your reputation for beauty.

Many women rouge with care and use lipstick with restraint and taste and ever make-up their eyes cleverly and then ruin it all by neglecting their foreheads.

There are new powders made especially for foreheads and chins, tones just a little lighter than the cheek powder of the same color and make.

Before you dust on your powder and pat it in with your puff, try using a foundation cream that will insure its sticking.

If you have wrinkles across your forehead, you can disguise them by clever make-up. The right kind of cream does much to fill the ruts.

By using powder carefully you can achieve a placid brow which in these frowning times is a distinct asset to any woman.

If you have a preference for healthy bloom on your cheeks, do not make the mistake of having your forehead stony white. It may be improved by the least little bit of rouge itself, along with your chin.

Use in make-up for foreheads, you should always remember your chin too. It needs practically the same effort expended that your forehead does.

Be sure to powder your forehead flush with your hairline. If you haven't the wrapped-hair habit when making up your face cultivate it. Tie a towel or bands of gauze or some kind of a band around your hair pulling it all back. Then you can be sure not to smear your hair with cream or dust it with powder.

Moreover, with your whole forehead retaced, you can do a much more thorough job of make-up.

NEARLY HALF OF IT

The United States at the end of 1930 had developed water power of 14,885,600 horsepower out of an estimated potential capacity of 58,600,000 horsepower, according to the United States geological survey. Development of water power of the world is now 49,000,000 horsepower, an increase of 10 per cent in the past ten years.

At that first sneeze, your irritation of the nose, your throat, your Nature's unmistakable warning that you are contracting cold—use Vicks VapoRub.

Vicks VapoRub is a new idea in "preventing" colds. These are companion products—they aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible the Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax"—in money, loss of time and health.

Here, briefly, is the Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds":

1.—Before a Cold Starts

At that first sneeze, your irritation of the nose, your throat, your Nature's unmistakable warning that you are contracting cold—use Vicks VapoRub.

Just as the wise plan is to use just a few Vicks VapoRub drops in a nostril after exposure to any cold condition that your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a big cold Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—over-smoking, over-heated, crowded rooms, etc.—and for the slightest stiffness of the nasal passages, Vicks Drops are especially designed to rid the nose—Nasal "Preventer" of colds—when exposed by such emergencies of a trifling present-day living.

WE WOMEN

By Virginia Vane

REAL LOVE OR PROTECTIVE INSTINCT? JEALOUS SWEET-HEART WILL LOSE FRIENDSHIP IF SHE NAGS

Dear Virginia Vane: I have been going with a boy for six months and know that he loves me very much. My family have begun to talk about him, accusing him of bad habits. It is true that he has had habits, but I know that he has given them up since he started going with me. Now I am bothered because I don't know whether I really love him and as I see him all the time, it is difficult for me to get at the real truth about myself. How can I test my love with loving him? I know he loves me.

FANNIE

You'd better go slow with this romance, young lady. To begin with, you've probably let yourself grow fonder of him than you expected, simply because your family took sides against him, which aroused all your loyalty and devotion.

In the second place, these bad habits of which you speak, cannot be lightly thrust aside with the explanation that he's given them up since he fell in love with you six months ago. Many another youth has found it easy to forego forbidden pleasures when he is first thrown of the tender passion—and has found himself drifting back to his old accustomed ways, when he is no longer dazzled by his love.

You certainly aren't going to do any great testing of your love if you see the same boy all the time—and when you're not seeing him, devote each hour to sticking up for him against an enraged family. You're bound to get him more and more on your mind—and eventually to believe that your obsession about him amounts to love.

It may be necessary to hurt him a bit by refusing to see him so steadily but it's far better to inflict that hurt at this stage of the game than to wait till matrimony is imminent before discovering that you aren't really in love at all.

Make it a point of going as many other boys as possible and of accepting all invitations which come your way. Give yourself a chance to compare the one you are acquainted with and make quite sure on your own mind that you are sincerely in love with him—and not merely imagining yourself in love because he is perfect for you in so many ways that he needs protection from your family's criticism.

Don't Scare Boyfriend Awar

GRACE You don't seem to have much to worry about. A girl who is young man who is so perfect for you and he appears to be so devoted to you, so there is no need to be fussing.

Give the lad time to discover whether he is in love or not. You haven't known him long enough and perhaps he is just so anxious to have a real trial to see if he can't be a real lover. Don't try to find out what leading questions you can score him over permanently. It is an occasion which calls for a girl of old-fashioned morality. You must be a nice quiet, polite, true-hearted and he'll come to love you more and more.

Quit Nagging

BROWN Love is a fine thing, but the love that is based on a girl's love you may be sure to be very engaged, and you'll be the best right to insist that he stick to you and you alone. Instead of concentrating all your time on him and his family, why don't you find another thing to do? You may think that is a bit silly, but it is a good idea. Let him know that you are not the world but a girl who is in love with yourself a chance.

In any case, he's going to get a bit by refusing to see him so steadily but it's far better to inflict that hurt at this stage of the game than to wait till matrimony is imminent before discovering that you aren't really in love at all.

SECRET TRUCK ROUTES FRUSTRATE HIJACKERS

Chicago —(AP)—Hijacking the trucks as the new game Chicago police are playing.

Twenty-one streets radiating from the city's principal railroad freight stations have been secretly designated as "protected routes," upon which merchants and truckers will place their goods with assurance of protection from special police details.

These routes were mapped out by the city's police department, and now the city has a full-time detail of 100 men to patrol them. What is the result? Well, it's six percent on a million dollars' worth of goods.

BUSINESS MAN'S VIEW

"Yes, it's a good idea," says a business man who has a full-time detail of 100 men to patrol them. What is the result? Well, it's six percent on a million dollars' worth of goods.

Discovery Makes Possible

New Plan by Makers of Vicks VapoRub for Better "Control-of-Colds"

Another advance in "Control-of-Colds" has been perfected by the makers of Vicks VapoRub. A third of a century ago, Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern, external method of "treating" colds. Now, Vicks Chemists introduce Vicks Nose & Throat Drops—based on a new idea in "preventing" colds. These are companion products—they aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible the Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home and further reduction of the family "Colds-Tax"—in money, loss of time and health.

Here, briefly, is the Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds":

1.—Before a Cold Starts

At that first sneeze, your irritation of the nose, your throat, your Nature's unmistakable warning that you are contracting cold—use Vicks VapoRub.

Just as the wise plan is to use just a few Vicks VapoRub drops in a nostril after exposure to any cold condition that your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—for instance, a big cold Pullman—a dusty automobile ride—over-smoking, over-heated, crowded rooms, etc.—and for the slightest stiffness of the nasal passages, Vicks Drops are especially designed to rid the nose—Nasal "Preventer" of colds—when exposed by such emergencies of a trifling present-day living.

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the chest and chest well with Vicks VapoRub. It is available in white stainless steel. If you prefer, spread on this, and cover with a warm flannel. Leave the hot clothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled freely all night long. During the day, at any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops as needed for ease and comfort. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Liniment—actually medicated with the essence of Vicks VapoRub.)

The gives you full freedom to rest and without the loss of so much internal "doing" which often upsets the digestion—especially of children—and lowers the strength at a time when Nature wants you to rest and recover. It is a real relief to rest and recover. It is a real relief to rest and recover. It is a real relief to rest and recover.

Trial Offer to Vicks Users

The Vicks Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" has been tested—and proved. But the makers want users of Vicks VapoRub to test it themselves in their own homes. Get a bottle of Vicks Drops today. Try it for 10 days. If results are not satisfactory, your original dollar will be refunded to you.

SECRET TRUCK ROUTES FRUSTRATE HIJACKERS

Chicago —(AP)—Hijacking the trucks as the new game Chicago police are playing.

Twenty-one streets radiating from the city's principal railroad freight stations have been secretly designated as "protected routes," upon which merchants and truckers will place their goods with assurance of protection from special police details.

These routes were mapped out by the city's police department, and now the city has a full-time detail of 100 men to patrol them. What is the result? Well, it's six percent on a million dollars' worth of goods.

BUSINESS MAN'S VIEW

"Yes, it's a good idea," says a business man who has a full-time detail of 100 men to patrol them. What is the result? Well, it's six percent on a million dollars' worth of goods.

Don't Scare Boyfriend Awar

GRACE You don't seem to have much to worry about. A girl who is young man who is so perfect for you and he appears to be so devoted to you, so there is no need to be fussing.

Give the lad time to discover whether he is in love or not. You haven't known him long enough and perhaps he is just so anxious to have a real trial to see if he can't be a real lover. Don't try to find out what leading questions you can score him over permanently. It is an occasion which calls for a girl of old-fashioned morality. You must be a nice quiet, polite, true-hearted and he'll come to love you more and more.

Quit Nagging

BROWN Love is a fine thing, but the love that is based on a girl's love you may be sure to be very engaged, and you'll be the best right to insist that he stick to you and you alone. Instead of concentrating all your time on him and his family, why don't you find another thing to do? You may think that is a bit silly, but it is a good idea. Let him know that you are not the world but a girl who is in love with yourself a chance.

In any case, he's going to get a bit by refusing to see him so steadily but it's far better to inflict that hurt at this stage of the game than to wait till matrimony is imminent before discovering that you aren't really in love at all.

he was playing cards with a friend and thus did not start for home until 9:15. It was his custom to enter through a rear side door, which hidden behind the wing in which the living room is located, lies in a deep shadow.

Heard Blows Struck

In the living room, not more than twelve feet away from a window directly overlooking the side entrance, but on which the shade was drawn, Mrs. Chatelet awaited her husband's homecoming. Suddenly she heard his voice, raised in a single angry epithet; then the sound of a scuffle, and the clatter as his metal lunch basket fell to the concrete walk.

Then three heavy blows—then silence.

She ran to the window and saw a form lying there. She remembered also to have heard a sound like someone running through the back yard, but paid little attention to it, thinking only that her husband had fallen on the steps and has injured himself. He was unconscious and moaning.

She called the telephone operator who located the chief of police, Charles Drees, and called the doctor and a priest. With the assistance of a neighbor, the body was carried into the house, the man dying a few moments later.

Authorities are absolutely without a clue to the slayers. It is obvious that they were familiar with Chatelet's habits, but his oil station is directly across the street from the city hall and police station, and no suspicious characters ever had been seen loitering about.

Mr. Chatelet was a native of Buffalo, N. Y., but had lived in Peshtigo for the last 35 years. For the last 10 years he has been manager of the Deep Rock Oil company filling station. Prior to that, he was for several years superintendent of the Marinette co. workhouse. Survivors are his widow, two daughters, Muriel and Mrs. Frank Seefeldt, Jr., of Peshtigo, and a son, Angus, of Quinnesec, Mich.

RADICAL LAWS NOT LIKELY IN NEW CONGRESS

Democrats Feel Responsibility of Leadership in Coming Session

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1931, by Post Pub. Co.
Washington — Conferees inside and outside of congress among Democrats leads to the conclusion that so-called radical legislation is not contemplated and that, on the contrary, the Democrats feel the responsibility of leadership and they accept it eagerly.

For weeks it has been assumed that the Democrats were disinclined to organize the house and that they were unwilling to control by a narrow margin. All this has been changed as the returning members have indicated their belief that the Democrats have a golden opportunity to prove their effectiveness in advance of the presidential campaign. Usually it has been charged by Republicans that the Democrats are inimical to business and that they are guilty of passing bills harmful from an economic viewpoint.

Today the Democrats, with control of the house of representatives, will be responsible for the framing of revenue-raising measures and fiscal policy. In the senate, the most important legislation dealing with banking will emanate from the subcommittee of which Senator Glass of Virginia is chairman.

Glass is conservative.

Proposals for a rediscounting corporation to take care of building and loan associations, the creation of an emergency finance corporation and legislation relating to the federal reserve act will come out of the Glass subcommittee. As former secretary of the treasury and author of the federal reserve law, Mr. Glass is known as a conservative on banking matters, though what he recommends to curb stock market speculation might be classed as radical by the New York brokers. Few suggestions for liberalizing the present rediscount provisions of the federal reserve system have met with favor from Senator Glass so it may be said the Virginia senator will stand firmly against efforts to make the federal reserve system an instrument of inflation.

The question of who will control the senate has been academically raised by the fight of a few progressives against the reelection of Senator Moses of New Hampshire. Senator Moses of New Hampshire as president pro tem. If these progressives booted their party, the Democrats would have control of the committee and the chairmanships would be lost to some of the progressives who want to keep them. It is not considered probable that this fight will be carried out to that extreme. Having expressed their disapproval of Mr. Moses in the conference of this week, the progressives are likely to follow the party caucus.

Hoover's Position

The difficulties of the president have been multiplied by the fact that his own party does not control the house, but even if by a narrow majority the Republicans had gained control, it is quite probable that a defection of a handful of insurgent Republicans would have thrown the balance of power to the Democrats. As matters stand now, the Democrats have the job of keeping their own ranks solid so that they can muster a majority behind their proposals. The White House therefore is inclined to view the situation with equanimity and the plans are for the president to keep in close touch with Democratic leaders in both houses who are to have the responsibility of steering important legislative proposals through congress.

Already the conferences during the recess on the war debt moratorium and on the plan for an emergency finance corporation have bipartisan backing, so relatively little debate is expected from a partisan standpoint. The expectation is that the administration will strive to obtain before Christmas approval of the moratorium and other measures promised the country when congress was not in session.

The feeling prevails here that the coming session while offering plenty of opportunity for political fireworks will be fairly conservative after all and that any immense government appropriations for employment relief or public works will be arrested by the published facts about the decline in income tax receipts and government revenues generally.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

A WAY THEY HAVE IN THE NAVY

Perhaps due to the fact that cards are a pastboard reproduction of problems involved in military strategy and tactics, the army and navy both boast many fine Contract players. The officers, daily grappling with problems of which the game of Contract is a miniature reproduction, often recognize the hands involving complex problems more readily than those whose training has been along the paths of peace. To Commander W. B. Howe of the United States Navy I am indebted for the hand below in which bold defensive bidding averted the bidding and making of an adverse Slam.

South—Dealer.
North and South not vulnerable.
East and West vulnerable.

The Bidding:
(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♦(1)	6♦(2)	Pass
Pass	Dbl.(3)	Pass	Pass

1—As Commander Howe points out, West's best bid was probably two spades.
2—North fears that a bid of five diamonds would not be high enough to stop East and West from bidding. His bid of six diamonds is not made with the expectation of making the contract but on the principle of choosing the lesser of two evils. 3—Shut out from learning anything about East's honor strength or distribution, West decided to play for a penalty rather than risk being penalized.

In the play of the hand, South lost 4 tricks and was therefore penalized 400 points. A study of the cards, however, disclosed the fact that East and West have a Grand Slam at hearts or spades, or for the matter clubs. The Grand Slam, of course, should not be bid, as its success depends upon the favorable location of the heart King, but a Small Slam unquestionably would have been reached and made had not North decided with his hand, void of honor values, but rich in distribution, to exclude his opponents from bidding.

TODAY'S POINTER
Question: What is meant by:
(a) A full honor-trick?
(b) A half honor-trick?
Answer:
(a) An honor card or combination that is reasonably certain to take a trick.
(b) An honor card or combination that, about half the time will win a trick.

REDUCING HOME BUILDING COST AIM OF MEETING

Believe Mass Production Will Solve Difficult Problem

BY ALEXANDER R. GEORGE

Washington —(AP)— Mass production of houses, in the opinion of some building authorities, offers probably the only feasible method of providing suitable homes at very low cost for persons of small income.

How to apply large scale building operations, even to the extent of creating entire villages, and how to improve the present system of second mortgage financing which is termed "costly and unsound" will be specifically outlined by experts at President Hoover's conference on home ownership here this week.

Budgetary statisticians say that a man with an income of $1,500 a year cannot afford to pay more than $3,000 for a home. Members of the President's Planning committee believe that the best way to build the suitable $3,000 home is by more extensive application of the principle of mass construction.

The special committee on large scale operations under the chairmanship of Alfred K. Stern, director of the John A. Roosevelt fund, will present to the conference a definite program for removal of obstacles that stand in the way of its application.

The committee has made a study of mass production projects of the past including several notably successful enterprises.

Chief talking point so far of those who advocate large scale home building is the "safety of investment" record of some of these enterprises even in the face of depression. They look to the profit phase of these operations as naturally the greatest inducement for adoption throughout the country.

The big bugaboo of the home financing system is held to be the second mortgage. The Associated General Contractors of America has told the president's committee that financing methods will have to be placed on a sounder basis before public confidence and interest in home ownership can be properly restored.

Bureaus Suggested

The solution to the second mortgage problem, this organization contends, lies first in establishing a sound basis for making appraisals of property and for the writing of first mortgages.

It suggests the creation of local appraisal and inspection bureaus to insure proper valuation and good workmanship.

GRANDMOTHER FOUND GUILTY OF ROBBERY; TO ASK NEW TRIAL

Chicago—(P)—A 67-year-old grandmother has been convicted as a robber. She is Mrs. Anna Baranski, who was found guilty by a jury in criminal court yesterday.

The conviction carries a mandatory sentence of 1 to 20 years imprisonment, but the trial judge deferred passing judgment and the defendant's attorneys said they would request a new trial.

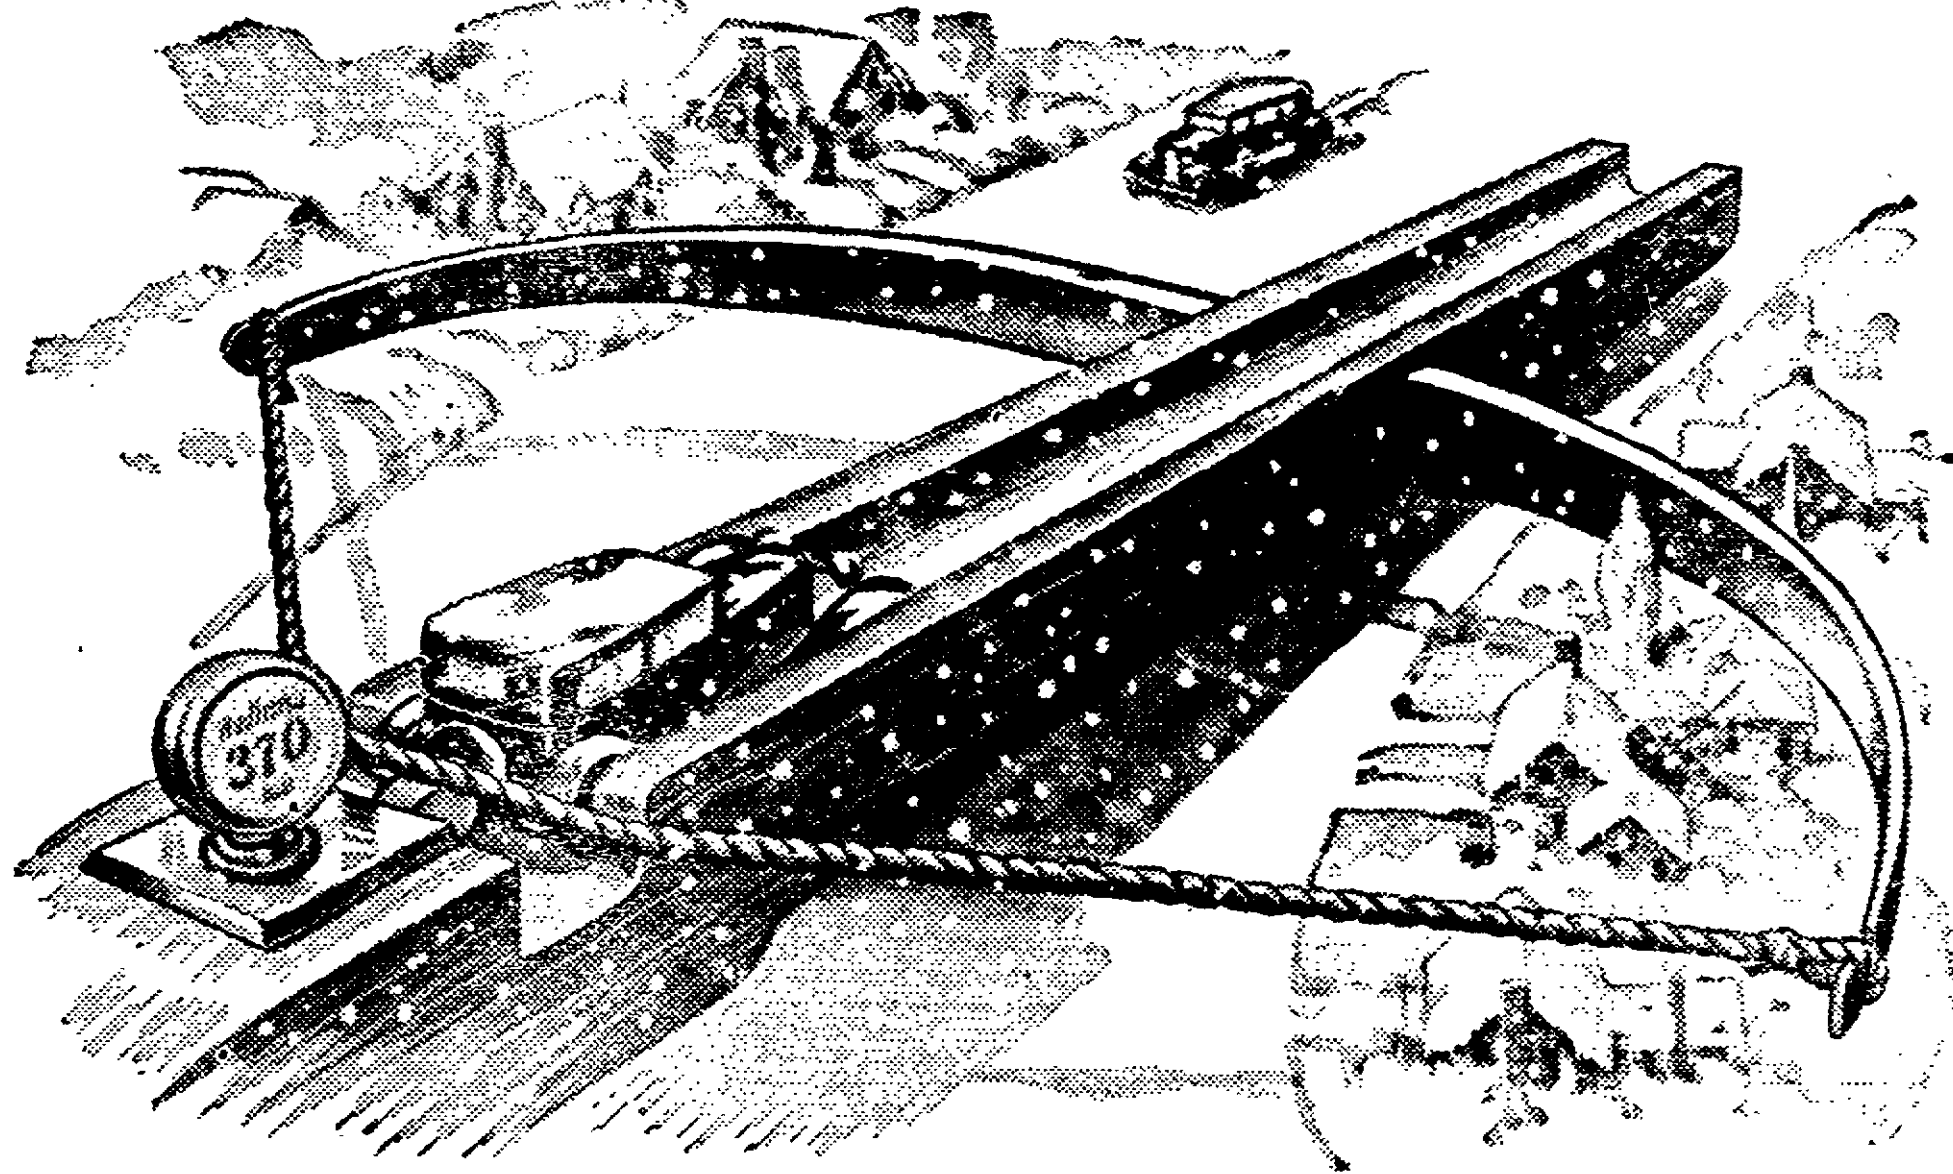

Mrs. Baranski, known as the "grandmother bandit" was accused of complicity with her son, who was slain in a robbery and Harold Marcell, who turned state's evidence. The authorities accused the grandmother of making small purchases in stores they planned to rob, thus learning in advance of the holdups where the money could be found.

Buys Dresses In Paris For Next Role In Movies

BY JESSIE HENDERSON

Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press
Hollywood—(CPA)— Transatlantic shopping is now being done in Hollywood. For the first time since motion pictures began, a star bought her wardrobe in Paris according to the instructions of her director, who sat down at his Hollywood telephone and called a Paris number.

The conversation lasted 22 minutes, which is why Constance Bennett is back here with exactly the right gowns for the picture that Edward H. Griffith is directing. It is also why Griffith is 100 per cent satisfied with the wardrobe angle of the film.

The wardrobe angle is an important feature. Miss Bennett, as "A Lady With a Past," wears 17 different dresses in the course of the picture and since clothes make the man they have much to do with why the lady on celluloid managed to acquire a good, rich past in the first place.

The story had been selected while the star was in Europe. As soon as Griffith read it he realized that without the right kind of clothes the point would be lost. So quick he rings up Paris, Miss Bennett cancels her sailing and for an extra week in the gay French capital she shops and shops and shops.

HORSE TRADERS UPHOLD ETHICS, ROTARIANS TOLD

Modern Business Men Could Follow Example, Speaker Declares

Special to Post-Crescent
New London—Horse trading days were recalled by Dr. Lockhart, Oshkosh, who spoke at the Rotary club weekly meeting at Elwood hotel Monday. Horse trading, the speaker pointed out, was an established business sideline in olden days, with a strict code of ethics involved which were tacitly understood by both parties. Traders bargained until each had agreed and it was understood that each party in the transaction had bettered his condition with no harm done to the other.

Life today, the speaker pointed out, either in professional, business or national life should be conducted upon the same basis.

"We are all traders," Dr. Lockhart said. "The customer who enters a store has a right to believe that in the selection of his merchandise he is bettering himself in the bargain, while the professional man in the manipulation of his affairs must give to his patrons the feeling that he is receiving full value for his money."

The thought was extended to embrace our relations with foreign countries, the speaker stating that our dealings with other nations should be conducted with the same understanding which was prevalent in the horse deals, in which the sound trader gave full value for what he received. The feeling that the customer is getting the best in the bargain is an excellent working basis for further business, the speaker concluded.

Who's News Today

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON Copyright, 1931, by Cons. Press New York — Joseph P. Tumulty has devoted his post-war house career to making a fortune, keeping up his political fences in New Jersey and defending the memory of Woodrow Wilson. Today his friends are broadcasting his still verdant reputation as they move to make him the successor of Dwight Morrow in the senate. They propose to make him the democratic nominee next year.

There is a big turn-over among presidential secretaries. President Taft had four in his single term. In all administrations there has been similarly high mortality. Mr. Tumulty, with his eight years in that office, held the record for permanency. Toward the end there was a rift between him and his chief, when he was charged with being jointly responsible, with Postmaster Burleson, for Mr. Wilson's appeal for democratic congress. It was said that Mr. Tumulty never saw the president again. Nevertheless, he has been alert to assail critics of Woodrow Wilson.

"This is the fall edition of the hymn of hate," he said of Henry Cabot Lodge's book, "The Senate and the League of Nations." He fights the isolationists.

Born in Jersey City in 1858, Mr. Tumulty became active in politics before he was out of St. Peter's college. As a young lawyer he was sent to the assembly by Bob Davis, old-time Jersey City boss. He was clerk of the supreme court and then secretary to Governor Wilson. After the death of Wilson, he established a law office in Washington, but kept his Jersey City residence. He is supposed to have patched up his differences with Frank Hague, powerful mayor of Jersey City.

Nyack, N. Y., is excited over the news that "The Lady of the Glass House" has a husband. In 1927, the beautiful, red-haired Mrs. Ward Leigh, who was Evelyn Provost of the New York elect and a debutante in 1923, built a glass house on Nyack's highest mountain. She further agitated the staid old town by ordering George Roseville, boss tailor, to make trousers, fore and aft, for her horse, "Lady." Lady ran away, threw out Mrs. Leigh and smashed the basket phanton. Thereafter, she (the horse) wore only a stable lounging suit.

The glass house lady, wearing perforated clothes, demonstrating the sun cure and eating raw vegetables, got plenty of ultra violet rays but no privacy.

Nyack was peeved today to learn that she had married Herbert Colshaw, a taxi driver. The romance was brought to light by the S. P. C. A. when it discovered that the taxicabmen had forgotten to feed Lady. Mrs. Leigh was divorced from her first husband, a wealthy businessman. Lady's trousers are to keep the flies off.

Along with Joseph Patrick Tumulty, another fighting Irishman comes into the news today, as Major Dennis E. Nolan becomes commanding general of the second corps area, succeeding Major General Hanson.

Ely, in his West Point days, Cadet Nolan was ranked with Frank Hinkley of Yale as the best football ends in America. He was also a baseball star.

"A master of military technique and a fighter" is the encomium given him by his army conferees. In the Spanish-American war he was cited for bravery at El Caney. His steady advance, thereafter, made him chief of military intelligence in the A. E. F., in the world war, and later deputy chief of staff of the army. He participated in the Meuse Argonne offensive and, with the exception of General Pershing, is probably the most decorated man in the United States army. He holds the Distinguished Service cross, the Order of Commander of the Bath, from England, commander of the Crown, from Italy, and commander of the Crown from Belgium. He is one of the least talkative of generals and has never been involved in public controversy.

The Rev. W. R. Wetzeler preached on The Lord Cometh at the German service Sunday morning, and on Living in View of the Coming of the Lord at the English service.

The Episcopal Every Member can was completed Monday night, after 23 workers had spent three days visiting members of the parish. Fifty men and boys made a corporate communion at 8 o'clock Sunday morning, and at the 11 o'clock service Dr. L. D. Utts preached on Green Pastures. Holy Communion was administered at 7 o'clock on Monday, St. Andrew's day.

An Advent service will be held at 7:45 Thursday evening at St. Matthew's church. The Rev. Philip A. C. Froehke preached on Blessed Is He that Cometh Sunday morning.

The advent service at St. Paul church will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening. The board of trustees will meet at 7:30 Wednesday evening. Sermons at Full Gospel tabernacle, Sunday were Chariot Horses in the Time.

A special Advent service will be held Wednesday evening at Mount Olive church, with Jesus Christ the Fulfillment as the theme. The Rev. R. E. Ziesemer preached Sunday on The Kingdom of God Cometh Not With Observation.

The Women's Union of St. John Evangelical church conducted a bazaar Tuesday afternoon, and will hold a meeting Thursday afternoon.

PLAN NEEDED FOR FUTURE IN DULL PERIODS

Irving T. Bush Says Present Problem Is Challenge to America

BY WILLIAM J. EADS (Copyright, 1931, Associated Press) New York—(AP)—The present unemployment problem furnishes a challenge to American industry to find some permanent solution to prepare for future emergencies, Irving T. Bush, president of Bush Terminal Co., said today.

"I am an optimist," Mr. Bush said. "I can see indications of improvement in some lines now, and if we were in the same position as we were a quarter century ago we might go on from here."

"However, we are so closely knit in a financial and business way with Europe that our progress out of the present slump will depend in large measure on Europe's advance. But we will have other periods of unemployment and the time to prepare for them is now."

"There must be something radically wrong with a system such as ours that permits panhandling, bread lines and soup kitchens and still obviously does not provide relief for all," he said. "Except in countries where begging is a recognized occupation I do not know of any country that has as much of it as we have here."

Bush made it clear that he favors the present nation-wide emergency unemployment relief, but that he feels some permanent plans should be worked out to care for future emergencies.

Approves Swope Plan

He believes the plan of Gerard Swope, already in effect in the General Electric Co., a good one, but pointed out that it takes care of only one industry.

"Mr. Swope's plan might well be taken as a model," he said, "to provide a plan that would cover every field of industry, skilled and unskilled labor and the white collar workers."

He said that the government should have no part in this enlarged plan, pointing out that government aid provides one of the weaknesses of the European system. Such relief, he believes, is too paternalistic.

He believes most of the present troubles are due to the government mixing in matters entirely outside of proper governmental function.

"To my mind," he said, "the proper method of raising the necessary fund is through contribution of a trifling sum from the pay envelope, and then have industry match that sum or contribute more, if more is necessary."

It can readily be seen that such contributions would amount to an enormous sum. The purpose for which it is collected makes it a most solemn trust and it is worthy of the highest type of administration that can be provided.

Favors Central Body

"To have it administered by as many organizations as there are industries would, I am convinced, be a serious mistake. It would almost certainly result in a situation where, for the need for using the money, arose, perhaps most would be found to have been ably managed, but inevitably there would be found others that had been mismanaged, with no relief available for those groups of unemployed."

"To guard against just such a contingency, I would suggest that some permanent central body, one that is above even the suspicion of approach, be created to administer the fund. Perhaps it would be too much to expect that one body could do the work for the entire country. In that event regional organizations could be formed for the work."

One point, not to be lost sight of, Bush said, is that the money should be invested in thoroughly sound securities that can be quickly liquidated. The matter of return on the investment, he believes, is of secondary importance, as the chief purpose is to have the money readily available in time of need.

In administering the relief, enough should be distributed to keep the unemployed from actual want, he said, but on the other hand, there should be safeguards to prevent giving so much as to make unemployment more profitable than working.

morning and in the evening, A Picture of Sin, The Atonement of Jesus Christ is the subject for the Thursday evening Bible study meeting.

The theme at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Sunday was Ancient and Modern Neocromism, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism.

$122,000 MADE AVAILABLE IN SAVINGS CLUBS

A total of $122,000 was made available this week to some 2,550 persons in Appleton. The sum represents amounts saved by these persons during the last year in Christmas Savings clubs in the three Appleton banks. Bankers said the amount is about $10,000 in excess of that distributed last Christmas. The number of people receiving checks is about 100 more than last year.

Only one of the banks this year is making out the checks for its patrons. The patrons of the other two banks must call at the banks to get their funds. However, all of the banks mailed letters to their patrons telling them that their funds are available.

BAGG DISCUSSES GEM PREJUDICES

Lawrence College Professor Continues Lectures to Women

Prof. Rufus M. Bagg of Lawrence college showed how prejudices against precious gems affect their market in his weekly geology lecture Monday afternoon at Science hall before more than 100 club women. This series of lectures is being sponsored by the Appleton woman's club.

"Synthetic gems," he said, "are just as perfect and just as beautiful as the genuine stones, but people are prejudiced in the idea that they must have the original gem as it comes from the earth."

"Opals, one of the most beautiful stones in the world, has a limited market because of the general prejudice against the stone for its supposedly evil omen."

Dr. Bagg rated emeralds second in value to diamonds among precious stones and related how the famous emerald mines in the Colombian Andes now belong to a large diamond syndicate which curbs emerald mining to protect the diamond market. He also explained that jewel formations may be alike for several stones, the only differentiation being the color of the gem. As examples of this he explained that rubies are corundum in its true or red state, but sapphires are the same rock formation in a blue color. Oriental topazes are yellow corundum, Oriental amethysts, purple corundum, while a white sapphire is a colorless formation.

In explanation of how reconstructed jewels are made Dr. Bagg pointed out that the same elements as an original stone contains are fused chemically together, producing exactly the same stone with the same characteristics.

That high school girls have taken to long hair with a seriousness. Every other girl in school is in the process of letting her bob grow or trying to keep ends from straggling out of a new pug. A popular hair dress seems to favor a long bob marky to the shoulders with a coy, hunched tied around the head, neatly exposing a couple of ears.

That it doesn't pay to fail to mind one's p's and q's at Appleton high school unless a student likes to get to school at 7:30 in the morning. WALKER'S PLEA TO CLIMAX MOONEY'S FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

New York Mayor's Attempt Brings New Hope to Labor Leader

BY W. A. WELLS San Francisco — P — On the surge of a new and characteristically dramatic gesture, Tom Mooney now rests his newest hope for the pardon for which he has fought for nearly 15 years.

Mayor James J. Walker, civic chairman of the nation's largest city, today will attempt to win pardon for his own expense in his private capacity as an attorney to ask the man who led the parade to pardon a man convicted of bombing.

This latest effort, claiming perhaps the longest and most militant battle in American history by a prisoner to obtain freedom and clear his name of the stigma attached to conviction of wholesale murder, is typical for Mooney's and color of the many which have gone before.

The intense plea of a president—Woodrow Wilson—Mooney from being hanged 15 years ago. At least three times he has been taken to the state supreme court since then, and in one or another phases of his habeas corpus way to the appellate court and the United States supreme court.

Efforts Unsuccessful

Three times defeated and resourceful efforts have been made to win a pardon from succeeding California governors, and each time failure was the product of the sympathetic moral assistance lent his cause by men of national and world influence.

Mayor Walker and his associates in their crusade on behalf of the man whom they believe to Mooney's innocence term "the Dreyfus of America" add the prestige of their names to a list already replete with prominent personalities.

These include: Albert B. Einstein, the scientist; Walter Dutton K. Wheeler of Montana; Gov. George W. P. Hunt of Arizona; Senator Robert La Follette of Wisconsin; the trial judge, Theodore Dreiser, author of the late David Starr Jordan, editor of the Pacific Monthly, and hundreds of others.

By a somewhat coincidental detail of fortune the fourth California executive now faced on this perennial "let us" of California politics through Mayor Walker's interest on the one who, as mayor of San Francisco, headed the parade which the dramatic bomb threw into confusion.

Gov. James Rolph, Jr., however, has declared himself willing to face the issue.

It is one which no California governor since that afflicted day in July, 1915, when ten of those marching in a preparedness demonstration were killed and scores injured by an explosion along the line of march, has been able to evade.

Mooney defense workers say they haven't the slightest intimation of Governor Rolph's personal or official opinion with reference to the guilt or innocence of the aggressive, radical labor leader.

Bilious, Mooney Break

For the first time in the highly maintained struggle for freedom the Mooney forces are proceeding with open recognition of the break that came within recent months between Mooney and Warren K. Billings who was convicted of being a co-conspirator with Mooney in the bombing.

Billings, declared by the state supreme court in a recent majority decision to have admitted through counsel that his original trial had been fair and impartial, was the first to break the pardon-fight alliance.

In advance of the latest hearing, Mooney was quoted as saying there was more concrete proof of his own innocence than there was of Billings' and that consequently he would wage a separate fight.

RIGHT OF HUSBAND TO DUCK MISSILES UPHELD IN COURT

Chicago — (P) — A man's home is his castle and when things therein begin to fly in his direction he has a perfect right to dodge.

This was the ruling of Judge John Eberhardt yesterday in the case of C. E. Tracey, sales manager of an electrical concern who was accused by his landlord, Joseph Lisseroweth of malicious mischief.

The story, as related in court was that when Tracey turned into his home one day during the early morning hours, his wife cut loose with a vase, a radio, a golf trophy and a few other things, all of which he successfully dodged.

His landlord claimed the damage was $550, but Tracey said it should be charged against his wife, now presumably in Reno. Judge Eberhardt agreed with Tracey, but the latter agreed to be liberal and pay Lisseroweth $100.

SOVIET THEATRES PORTRAY INDUSTRY TO TEACH PEOPLE

Believe Entertainment Features Must Be Linked With Education

Moscow — P — The world's biggest theatrical producer, the Soviet government, operates on the theory that entertainment features must be subordinated to the education of the masses.

"We teach upon the theater as a training school for the people," said Boris Eshenkov, vice-chairman of the art section of the Commissariat of Education. "It is something more than a place for passing the time in pleasure."

Naturally we feel that in order to accomplish this the best type of talent should be used.

"Playhouses in all countries are institutions of propaganda. The difference is that in the bourgeois countries they promote the interests of the bourgeoisie, while in the Soviet union we propagate socialism. Lessons learned in Russia's attempt to spring from a backward agricultural country into a highly industrialized nation, and the work that still is to be done, form the themes which the 500 theaters of the country are called upon to carry to the people.

All of the new productions portray such subjects. Instead of individual heroes and heroines, plots are woven about industrial plants, collective farms and other phases of communal endeavor.

In many cases audiences are lectured during intermissions on the lessons to be gained from the play.

Many of the old dramas and operas still are offered, but none, either of the old or new order, is allowed to appear which does not fit the teachings of Marx.

BANNISTERS LEAVE FOR CALIFORNIA

Mrs. and Mrs. J. F. Bannister left Monday for Long Beach, Calif., where they will make their home. Mrs. Bannister will open a new dancing school there in a few weeks and Mr. Bannister will resume his stage career, taking character roles in moving pictures.

Edward M. Bannister, Bannister's assistant, a graduate of the Gladys High school of dancing in Chicago, will be in charge of the local studio. Mrs. Bannister plans to return to Appleton every spring to supervise the annual spring show.

LADY with a PAST

BY HARRIET HENRY

SYNOPSIS: Venice Muir has set three goals for herself--to become popular in New York society, to repay Roland Wainwright for an old snub and to attract Drake Farrelly. She returns from Paris with a manufactured spicy reputation that makes her popular. She captures Wainwright's interest. But Drake remains aloof.

Chapter 35

RUMOR TRICKS VENICE

VENICE and Drake talked impersonally in the taxi, and it was not until they were at a small table their dinner ordered, that she summoned the courage to say, "Lola's news of me has disconcerted you, hasn't it?"

"Yes, it has rather."

"Why?"

"You won't like what I'm going to say."

"Say it, anyway."

"I don't particularly admire a girl who leads on a married man or who gets a chap in such a state that he kills himself when she turns him down."

Venice felt the shamed colour creeping into her face. That was exactly the way it all appeared and yet up to now it had served her well. It had intrigued a score of imaginations. And yet here was the only person in whom she could confide, with whom she could rejoice in being her genuine self, who regarded it all as a blot on her personal escutcheon. She couldn't bear this. She wanted him to admire her, to offer her his sincere approbation.

"It wasn't really at all like that," she protested earnestly.

"What was it really like then?"

"His tone was a trifle amused. She could see that he was prepared for a manufactured reclamation.

"Guy Bryson, the American and I played about together because we were both lonely. It--it was a sort of arrangement. It wasn't an affair. We never once thought of each other that way. He never even held my hand. Rene de Tiberiades was a fortune hunter. His debts were mounting. He wanted to marry me for my money. He finally killed himself because of one particularly unbearable debt to a woman."

Drake laughed. It was that infectious laugh, but there was a quality in it this time that hurt.

"Venice Muir, you're a genius."

"What do you mean?" He didn't believe her. Her dinner was going practically untasted.

"Look here," he protested, "you're not eating. Isn't everything all right?"

"The food's delicious. But I didn't like your laugh."

"I'm sorry, Venice. I didn't mean it to be a horrid laugh. But I'm not a boy of eighteen. You shouldn't talk to me as if I were."

"I talked to you as if you were a friend. I told you the truth, Drake."

"Yes, but so beautifully glossed. Expurgated for the idealistic young man's ears."

She toyed unhappily with her fork. It all seemed suddenly hope less. He accepted the rumours as willingly as every one else, but his reaction was so different.

This was dreadful. Inside her she was miserable and yet she couldn't let the evening completely collapse. "Let's talk about you," she forced herself to say brightly.

"An uninteresting guy."

"No, really. What do you do with yourself all the time?"

She did so much want to know and most earnestly desired to reach that warm, friendly footing again. "Nothing that would be entertaining telling."

"Please, Drake."

He smiled at her serious, almost intense.

"She did not return the smile. "Yes, you are snubbing me. I wouldn't ask questions if I weren't interested. Even the inquisitive sometimes really like some one and want to hear what he does. Be friends with me, Drake."

He stared at this little speech, a puzzled look coming into his clear amber-yellow eyes. The hurt sarcasm with which she had employed that "inquisitive" perplexed him and the childish sincerity of the last sentence could not be denied.

"I'm sorry, Venice. Prepare yourself for a dull chronicle. But wait, let's get the check first and we'll start the daily grind of Drake Farrelly in the taxi homeward bound."

In the cab they were silent for a dozen blocks, she looking out of the window, her mind busy with this new unhappy problem. Drake hated the very thing she had striven to achieve. Her carefully builded wall of rumor, she was left in watching her clear-cut profile. How could this grave, feminine girl who appeared so honest and so shy be at the source of all that Lola had glowingly reported? If he could only believe her interpretation of the gossip. But no. It was her ability to make people believe that had misled him in the beginning and had no doubt fooled this Bryson person and the Marquis.

Venice suddenly turned. Their eyes met and clung. Hers were grave, his smiled for the seriousness of her expression.

"Begin now, Drake. I go down town every day and--"

He laughed.

"Yes, I go down town every day and I slave in the office of Peasley and Whitcomb. In the evenings I make drawings for blue prints or stay home. Occasionally I go out with a girl or one of my special cronies. That's all. An uninspiring existence, monotonous yet pleasant."

"I didn't know you had a family. A big one?"

"A mother and a father, two sisters and two brothers."

"Go on," she begged.

It was as though he suddenly thought he was boring her. He smiled and shook his head.

"Nothing glamorous about my existence. And here we are anyway."

Back in Venice's living-room, dressed of hats and coats, they stirred the fire to a cheerful blaze and made themselves comfortable.

"What would happen if you won this contest?" she asked.

"They'd use my drawing and I'd probably get good offers from all sorts of firms."

"Would that mean a tremendous lot to you?"

"Yes." His face went alight. "I'd have a chance to bridge the years of back work under other people. I--" He stopped again. Once more she sensed that he was afraid she wasn't really interested.

"Please, Drake. I love hearing. The perfect hostess," he chaffed. "What had this knowledge of Guy and Rene done? She felt desperate. (Copyright, Harriet Henry)

What can Venice do? She makes one more effort to explain to Drake in Monday's instalment.

SUCH A DUMMY

"How are you getting on with George?"

"Oh, he's a most disappointing love. I purposely blew out the electric light bulb before he came over last night, and he spent the whole evening mending it."--Tiv Bits.

ready to submit the committee report, when Carroll insisted upon a ruling from the chair. Lieutenant Governor Huber announced that he would give his decision later and the report was held up.

Carroll said he would attack the report of the legislative interim question of the appointment of five members to the governor's executive council because the filibuster prevented confirmation.

Ended by Filibuster The filibuster was carried through by Senator Walter Polkowski, Milwaukee, Socialist, who demanded that the senate vote in the regular session on the Pons unemployment relief bill before he would relinquish the floor.

Before the committee were controlled by the Progressives. If the lieutenant governor, a member of the LaFollette faction, rules against him, Carroll may appeal from the decision of the chair but a two-thirds vote will be necessary to override the decision.

Beyond the political aspects of the status of the two committees and the legality of their expenditures, the question of their validity had no bearing upon the bills that have been introduced in both houses to put forth the governor's $17,000,000 unemployment relief program and his recommendations for changes in the banking laws.

The bills have been introduced under separate titles, but both, especially the banking measure, have followed the lines set out by the legislative committee. A majority of the unemployment committee proposed $8,000,000 in state aid relief funds, while the governor more than doubled that amount, the appropriations to meet chiefly by income surtaxes.

Banking Measures The administration bills to set up regional clearing houses for unit banks, from which members of chain banking would be excluded, and to name a board of five members to advise the state bank commission, follow closely the recommendations of the banking committee.

The unemployment committee had $10,000 to handle its affairs and conduct public hearings. The filibuster prevented an appropriation for that committee and the funds were procured through the emergency board.

An appropriation of $5,000 for the banking committee, however, got through before the filibuster. A $10,000 appropriation was made available for the executive council.

The committee hired clerical help and the members incurred personal expense, although they were given no salaries. The expense was met by the funds allotted each committee.

What to do about the financial matters named as one of the important questions in the event Huber sustains Carroll's position.

Carroll went along with the conservatives and two other independent last Tuesday in helping the regular Republicans elect Oscar Morris, Milwaukee, the conservative candidate for president pro tem.

Carroll injected an element of surprise in a night session which seemed to have been concerned only with the introduction of more bills.

The number of bills in the senate was increased from eight to fourteen and another batch of measures was introduced in the assembly, which had a more quiet evening.

ASSEMBLY BILLS Madison (P)—Several bills designed to relieve distress, protect bank deposits and aid unemployed persons were received by the assembly in a forty minute session last night. Three measures were prepared for hearings later in the week.

A bill to protect depositors in the event banks fail was introduced by Assemblyman J. E. Erickson, Eau Claire. It provides creation of a "state bank depositors' insurance fund" to be administered by the state without liability beyond the amount of the fund. The state treasurer and custodian of the fund and the state annuity board is directed to invest funds. Depositors would be paid within 60 days after a bank has failed and payment would be considered an assignment of claims held against such an institution.

Assemblyman Oscar Schmiede, Appleton, introduced a bill to permit unemployed persons to borrow money at low interest rates. It provides that persons unemployed through no fault of their own may elect to receive relief in the form of loans on promissory notes. There would be no interest for six months, after which interest would be charged on an increasing scale, beginning at 1 per cent and rising up to 6 per cent at the end of a year.

A bill to reorganize assembly and senatorial districts in conformity to the 1930 census was introduced by Assemblyman J. W. Carrow, Ladysmith. The representation per county would be left unchanged. Boundaries of assembly districts would be changed in Marathon, Wausaukee, Dane and Milwaukee counties. Senatorial districts would be changed only in Milwaukee.

An attempt to remove unconstitutional features of the oleomargarine law enacted at the last session is made in a bill revising the law. The

STOCKS DOWN AFTER EARLY SELLING WAVE

Railroad Shares Lead Upturn, More Than Erasing Early Losses

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER Associated Press Financial Editor

New York (AP)—After early selling which carried a number of leading stocks down to 2 points or more today, the stock market firmed. Railroad shares led the upturn, more than erasing their early losses. Industrials recovered most of their previous declines.

Railroad stocks came to the forefront of speculative attention because of rumors of an impending wage reduction in Canada. As the market entered the afternoon period net gains of 1 to 3 points on the main board were recorded. Hudson, Missouri, Kansas Texas preferred, Chesapeake and Ohio, Baltimore and Ohio, Missouri Pacific, New Haven and Union Pacific. Other leaders like Atchafalaya, New York Central and Norfolk and Western, recovered fractionally all of their earlier losses.

In the industrial issues, motion picture stocks were subjected to a wave of selling pressure, but when the tone of the general market changed, they, too, shared in partial recovery. Virtually the entire list regained one-half to three-quarters of the earlier losses in later trading, and some issues fully made up their morning declines. Activity centered largely in United States Steel, American Can, International Harvester and Case, among others. Fairly typical of the action of the entire industrial group was National Biscuit which after an early loss of 3 points rebounded 2 points on the rally.

Persistent report spread throughout the financial district that a decision would shortly be handed down by the Canadian board of mediation of railway wages. Confirmation was unobtainable but, according to the rumor, the anticipated report is expected to recommend a reduction of 10 percent. Because of its proximity to the United States, any Canadian action on rail wages would attract attention as a possible harbinger of later action to be taken here.

The familiar picture of the rapid fall of the English pound Sterling drew widespread attention in early trading, but reassuring reports later came from foreign money centers as well as from New York banks.

HOG PRICES REACH LOW LEVEL ON MART

Hog Traders Squeezed as Supply of 58,000 Head Arrives

Chicago (P)—Hog traders were squeezed again today when another big supply of 58,000 enabled buyers to nail down the lowest prices in twenty-three years. The country released hogs freely on spite prevailing low figures and did not seem to shy at accepting $4.25 to $4.35 a cwt. For good to choice hogs of standard weight that brought $5.25 to $5.35 a year ago. Prices dipped another 5-10c in the early trading, and packing hogs were forced well under $4.00.

Average cost of droves yesterday was $4.35, and today's cost was even lower, setting a new bottom figure since Feb. 25, 1908. Packers had 20,000 droves but only 5,000 state hogs were carried over unsold from the previous day.

Cattle salesmen were not in a submissive mood following the partial clearance of what turned out to be the largest run of the year when more than 22,000 cattle arrived on Monday. They insisted on steady to higher prices but they were unable to get them, and they are still in a bad mood during the early rounds.

Moderate receipts of sheep and lambs gave sellers an opportunity to set themselves for a recreation from the lowest price levels registered in twenty years. No direct consignment of lambs were reported and packers had to obtain slaughter material in the open market. Firm prices were quoted.

YULE SAVINGS TOTAL $36,000, BANKS REPORT

Payments to Be Made to Club Members Within a Few Days

Kaukauna—Approximately $36,000 will be paid out by Kaukauna banks within a few days in Christmas savings accounts. Bankers report a slight increase in the amount of Christmas savings over the same period last year. The average amount per person, according to the recent census, is approximately $5 per person for the period.

Christmas savings accounts at the Bank of Kaukauna closed Monday evening and new clubs were opened immediately Tuesday morning. Club members will be able to get their savings at the bank after Dec. 5. The checks will not be mailed out as in previous years, because members wish to get their money as soon as possible. All of the checks will be distributed at the bank, according to Charles D. Towles, president of the bank.

Accounts at the Farmers and Merchants bank will close Dec. 5, and the checks will be mailed to the depositors, according to Hugo Weidenbach, president. New clubs will start on Dec. 10. Clubs of the First National bank will close with Farmers and Merchants accounts and the business of handling the funds will be conducted by the same method as the Farmers and Merchants savings are handled. The reason is the recent merging of the two banks. All of the business of both banks is handled in the Farmers and Merchants bank building.

The clubs have become popular with patrons of the banks and are used for various purposes. Some are kept for taxes, which have to be paid around the first of the year, some for insurance and premiums and most of them for Christmas gifts. Clubs are grouped in several different classes ranging in weekly deposits from one cent to twenty dollars. None of the money can be withdrawn until the accounts have closed in December.

CAGE PLAYERS TO ORGANIZE LEAGUE

Meeting Called for 7 O'clock
Wednesday Evening at Legion Hall

Kaukauna—Organization of a city basketball league will take place at a meeting of players in the legion building on Oak st. at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. Six teams will be taken into the league, three to be organized on the south side of the city and the others on the north side.

A schedule will be arranged and regular practices will be held weekly, with league matches once a week. Play will continue throughout the season. Independent teams have had little success in their contests out side the city because of inability to find suitable quarters in which practices could be held. Use of the high school auditorium will be granted to league teams if the league is organized. The league will function along the same schedule as the city softball league last summer.

Players have shown much interest in the movement and it is possible that several more teams will enter. Several organizations have had teams in previous years, and these may enter the new group. That Kaukauna merchants are interested in such league has already been shown by the purchase of equipment for several of the teams already organized.

WOULD BEER MEAN CASH TO FARMER? HYDE SEEKS ANSWER

Washington —(P)— Secretary Hyde now has before him all the material for a study of what benefits, if any, legalized beer would bestow on farmers.

With a new congress convening and callers dropping in hourly to discuss agriculture's problem, it may take him a long time to reach any conclusions. It will not be before Jan. 1.

The secretary dropped word last September that he was planning a quiet inquiry to satisfy his own mind whether the return of beer would bring any more money to the farmers' pockets. Since then his own bureau has been digging up all manner of facts and he has received much unsolicited aid.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Kaukauna—The city council will meet Tuesday evening in the municipal building. Monthly business will be transacted, and plans for snow removal will be discussed.

PEACE RECIPE IS OFFERED BY BUTLER, EX - MARINE CHIEF

Chicago —(P)— Major General Smedley D. Butler, United States marines, retired, said last night that the "best way to keep out of wars is to use words of one syllable, to sign treaties with one hand and wave a club with the other."

He made this assertion during a debate in which he took the negative side of the question whether disarmament will end wars. His opponent, the Rev. Preston Bradley of the Peoples' church, argued that there never was a war that did not create bigger problems than itself, that wars are made by old men and fought by the young, and that the genius of mankind would not tolerate "alley rat warfare, killing each other."

"Treaties," said the former marine corps commander, "have never assured peace and I believe that secret diplomacy with the lack of one syllable words that would let us all in on what it's all about, contributes to wars."

Fees paid for notary public commissions in Ohio annually pay the salary of the governor.

Blisters Caused Itching and Burning. Healed by Cuticura.

"My little boy when only a few days old started breaking out with small blisters that were very red. The itching and burning were very severe because he cried almost all the time. His clothing seemed to aggravate the breaking out, and the irritation prevented him from sleeping. It caused disfigurement while it lasted."

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in about five weeks he was completely healed, after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Mrs. Estie K. Bailey, 521 S. Webster St., Ottumwa, Iowa, Feb. 17, 1931.
